GOMEZ CROSSES INTO TEXAS; DIAZ MEN BEHIND REBELLION, OROZCO FALLS BACK TO BORDER

Provisional President Abdicates and Flees Country---Balance of Power in Hands of Revolutionary Chief's Father

FIGHT WHICH MAY DECIDE WAR RAGING NEAR TORREON

By The Associated Press.

Juarez, Mex., May 11.—Gen. Pascual Orozco Sr. today held the balance of power in the Mexican revolution. Though Orozco Jr., with 7000 men is facing a federal army that is pressing him back toward the border, and the outcome of the battle is uncertain, the developments of the day, chiefly the abdication of Emilio Vasquez Gomez of the provisional presidency, which he assumed a week ago, indicate that the money interests behind Mexico's present disturbances must continue to court Orozco.

Gomez fled across the Rio Grande today to the United States. Today he was located in a boarding house in El Paso. He declined to make any statement.

Jose Cordova, secretary of state of Chihuauha, who bears Orozco's answer to Gomez's proposal of a provisional government, arrived tonight.

Trustworthy information has it that the men who once surrounded former President Diaz had been financing the Orozco movement through the agency of Gonzalo C. Enrile, now in Chihuahua. In the underground contest between the factions, Gomez, who could furnish only political ambition, was lost.

Of the fighting on the plains a hundred miles south, few details are at hand. Not content with the rigid censorship exercised over dispatches coming from the front, Gen. Orozco denied transportation to all of the correspondents who applied to go further south than Escalon, the rebel base.

While Gen. Huerta, the rebel commander, just north of Peronal, is striking constantly at the vanguard of the rebels, Orozco has sent to the westward a column under Gen. Luis Fernandes to flank the government troops and attack Gen. Telles, bringing up the rear of the federal army.

Gens. Villa and Rabago were detailed by Gen. Huerta to offset the flank attack of Fernandez on the west. East of the railroad some of the troops of Gen. Salazar, next in command to Orozco, have been placed to intercept the advance of Gen. Trucey Aubert, who is executing ing a flank movement toward Sierra Mojada and Escalon. Upon the outcome of the battle depends largely the success of the present revolution.

SEARCH FOR GOMEZ IN EL PASO WITHOUT AVAIL

By The Associated Press.

El Paso, May 11.—Mexican Consul Llorente said at midnight tonight that his secret service operatives have been all day watching a rooming house which one of them saw Gomez enter today. At this house it was denied Gomez was there.

Llorente, when informed Gomez had been in San Antonio, seemed disposed to disbelieve the report.

MEXICAN PAPER PESOS WORTH CENT LESS HERE

By The Associated Press.

Washington, May 11.—The exchange value of paper currency is beginning to be affected by the present revolution in Mexico. El Paso banks, according to th state department advices have announced the maximum they will pay for Mexican paper pesos is 48 cents. Formerly 49 cents was paid.

The recent battle of Tlahuallo was confirmed as a federal victory.

REPORTS OF BATTLE REACH MEXICO CITY

BELIEVED MAIN FORCES OF REBELS AND FEDERALS ARE NOW ENGAGED.

By The Associated Press.

At The Rebel Front, Near Conejos, Mex., May 11.—Five thousand rebel troops advanced southward tonight skirmishing as they proceeded. They should encounter the main body of the federals at daybreak.

BATTLE ON, IS REPORT.

By The Associated Press.

Mexico City, May 11.—Specials received in the capital tonight from Escalon via El Paso, indicated that a battle was in progress southwest of Conejos, the number of dead and wounded being large. The wounded were being attended by the Red Cross with the assistance of an ambulance service of the rebels.

It was believed to be the main forces of the rebels and federals which were engaged. The same dispatches said that the forces of the federal General Sangine's which had been in Ojinaga were advancing upon Chihuahua after having won a victory at Coyame, a short distance to the southwest. Trainloads of rebels were being rushed from Escalon to Conejos.

BARS RED FLAG IN PARADE OF SOCIALISTS

"REVOLUTION" BANNER CAN'T WAVE IN NATIONAL CONVENTION EVENT.

Indianapolis Police Chief to Make Procession a "Colorless" Affair.

By The Associated Press.

Indianapolis, May 11.—No red flags will be allowed in the big parade by which the socialist convention tomorrow night will celebrate the opening of the convention. This is the order of the police department, which said that a display of red flags might incite rioting.

Congressman Victor T. Berger of Milwaukee, when told of the order said:

"Hyland is a fool. There will be no rioting unless the police start it. Socialists are peaceful. We do not start riots."

Congressman Berger has decided to place the matter before the executive committee and Mayor Shank.

CONDITIONS ARE FEARFUL ON TEHUANTEPEC ISTHUS

Railroad Men Writes of Exodus of Americans from Rincon Antonio.

Special to The Morning News.

El Paso, Tex., May 11.—That conditions at Rincon Antonio, the Mexican National railroad division point on the Isthmus of Tehuantepec, state of Oaxaca, are serious, is evidenced by the following letter posted at that place on May 1, and received yesterday by Henry F. Provence, of El Paso, from a friend employed on the Isthmus railroad:

"This may not reach you. Everything is getting critical here, and the whole bottom is liable to fall out at any time. The Americans in this part of the country have been notified by the American consul to take advantage of the opportunity to leave the country on the transport Buford, which will reach Salina Cruz, May 13th.

"I think I will be a passenger on it, and will go as far as Los Angeles. If things quiet down I will come back. We have no protection here now. The country is full of bandits robbing and committing all sorts of depredations, besides the Jachiteca Indians in open warfare only forty kilos south of here, and not soldiers enough to even check them. When intervention, which seems sure, is declared, they are all going to join forces against the foreigners, regardless of nationality. So I think I will spend a month on the Pacific coast in the United States to try and be on the safe side.

"The American women are about all gone and the men are leaving here every day. The whole country is a nest of anarchy, regardless of what the papers say. I am going to work on until May 9, unless something new turns up, and when peace is declared, will come back.

"I won't go any further south as we are hated worse south than here. I don't think a 'gringo' would have any business in a southern country while the United States was at war with this country. Wait to write me until you hear from me. We may have to leave her at any time."

Pays Little Attention to Bailey Though In Anti-Bailey County.

By The Associated Press.

Cameron, Tex., May 11.—Congressman C. B. Randell spoke to a crowd of possibly 300 in the court house this afternoon in the interest of his candidacy for the senate. The congressman's voice was very hoarse and he could not make his usual form but it was well received. He did not pay as much attention to Senator Bailey as he has been doing in the west, although this is strictly an anti-Bailey county. He scored Wolters for his stand upon the initiative, referendum and recall, saying that while he was against the recall, he nevertheless admitted that it was needed, then he said he favored short time terms for judges.

When the congressman arrived from Brownwood this afternoon, a number of friends met him at the train and he was taken to his hotel in an auto, several of which followed with friends and admirers. Judge U. S. Pearell introduced him in a ten-minute speech of praise. He leaves tonight for Houston.

CITY KIDS

WORTH WINS THE KENTUCKY DERBY

KEEPS AHEAD OF THREE CONTENDERS, EACH BEING SECOND AT SOME TIME.

Race Run on Sloppy Track in Spitting Rain—Great Crowd from Over the State.

By The Associated Press.

Louisville, Ky., May 11.—Worth, away in front and never headed, lasted justs long enough to win the Kentucky derby at the opening of the spring meet at Churchill downs today. The great Hallenback three-year-old kept ahead of contenders, each of which was second to him at some time in the mile and a quarter route and won from Duval in the last jump. Had the race been ten yards longer the odds-on-favorite would have lost for he was fast tiring at the wire and Duval was coming with a rush. Flamma, after a clinging tightly at the post and getting off last closed a big gap and finished third.

The time was 2:09 2-5 four and two-fifths slower than the track record for this event which was made one year ago by Meridian.

The race was run on a sloppy track and in a spitting rain. The contention of man turfmen that Worth could not go the distance and especially on a sloppy track, did not deter the public from making him the big favorite, two dollar mutuals paying on $60 to win.

Gather From Over State.

Notwithstanding the threatening weather a crowd was typical of Kentucky Derby day. The free field attracted Kentuckians from all over the state and banked in the field was a throng, including many who see but one race a year. Politicians were there to greet people from all over the state and the crowd resembled more that at a country fair than at a race course.

When the horses passed the grand stand in review a cheer went up from the thirty thousand persons assembled. Even then Flamma acted badly and as they turned to go to the post she tried to break and run. The horses were at the post five minutes and when the barrier went up Worth was out ahead with Free Lance the second choice in the betting, and Wheelwright third.

At the three-quarters Free Lance gave up the second place to Wheelwright and the others were bunched close behind. In the next quarter Flamma, Guarnola and Sonada each were second but the terrific pace was too much and they dropped back.

Pressed By Duval.

Coming into the stretch, Worth was pressed by Duval two lengths behind and Flamma a length behind Duval. Then came the great test of the thoroughbreds. Which could last to the wire? Jockey Shilling on Worth realized that with the rush Duval was coming he might have lost. Duval was gaining and with Fain on Duval and Shilling driving for every ounce of strength left in their mounts, the two horses came under the wire, Worth a neck to the good and Flamma two lengths behind.

Gathering clouds and flashes of lightning already were driving people from the stands and the ceremony of putting the wreath on the neck of the winner and handing the jockey a bunch of American beauty roses were cut short, that all might escape the storm. The winner is out of Miss Hanover by Knight of Thistle, and is owned by H. C. Hallenback. As a two-year-old, he was one of the best winners of the turf.

Baby Torn From Its Father's Arms by a Cyclone; Negroes Die

By The Associated Press.

Tuscaloosa, Ala., May 11.—Extensive damage was done by a cyclone which passed here tonight. The city is in darkness tonight and wires are down, making communication difficult. Two negroes are known to have been killed.

The wind and rain was accompanied by the heaviest hail storm ever seen in this city. Numerous trees were blown down and several small houses had their roofs torn off.

An infant was blown from its father's arms as he was walking down the street, but was not injured.

HORSEWHIPPED BY A GIRL.

Special to The Morning News.

Shawnee, Ok., May 11.—Angered over a remark Will Edwards is said to have made about his daughter, John Nolan, a farmer residing in the southern part of the county, accompanied by the daughter, sought Edwards last night, and while the father forced the young man to hold up his hands, the daughter lashed Edwards about the head and body.

When the girl became exhausted from applying the whip she and the father returned home.

GOVERNMENT PREDICTION.

Washington, May 11.—Forecast:

East Texas—Fair Sunday and Monday.

West Texas—Fair and warmer Sunday; Monday fair.

Oklahoma — Fair Sunday; Monday fair and warmer.

SUNSHINE BOON TO FIGHTERS FOR LEVEES

DIKES AT NEW ORLEANS BELIEVED SAFE, BUT CITY STILL FLOODED.

Situation at Baton Rouge Remains Grave—Refugees Number Five Thousand.

By The Associated Press.

New Orleans, May 1.—A full day of sunshine and a cloudless sky tonight gives hope to the army of levee protectors and with the exception of Baton Rouge where the fight to hold the embankment along the river front is still considered at the most critical stage and engineers express the belief that the artificial barriers which held the record floods of the Mississippi in check will continue to hold.

Many up river towns that reported panicky conditions last night during the storm's fury had their fears relieved by the beautiful day which came on the heels of nerve-shattering night.

200 Blocks Flooded.

In New Orleans the excessive rainfall taxed the city drainage system beyond its capacity and tonight 200 blocks in the upper residence section are still flooded with the rainwater to a depth of 4 to 20 inches. Street car service throughout that section was annulled and today the only means of transportation over a large area was by boat, rafts and wagons. Negroes and small boys reaped a harvest of dimes and quarters getting business men and downtown employes from their homes to carlines.

Baton Rouge Yet In Peril.

By The Associated Press.

Baton Rouge, La., May 11.—Urged on by their successful fight last night to hold the Mississippi levee front of Baton Rouge which was momentarily threatened with destruction by torrential rains and a wind of hurricane intensity, citizens of Baton Rouge, convicts and laborers of all classes are battling against the flood tonight with renewed energy.

Rush Call Sent.

Although the sun shone brightly all day the actual conditions here tonight are little changed. A rush call was received from Old Hickory, 8 miles below Baton Rouge on the west side of the river where a weak spot in the levee developed. Material and men were sent there. The number of refugees being cared for here has passed the five thousand mark.

THREE HONDRED AND FIFTY THOUSAND DOLLARS PLEDGED FOR WACO-BEAUMONT RAILWAY

At Banquet Given Central Texas Boosters Following Trip Over Proposed Route Raising of Money Assured

ROAD TO DEVELOP INTO TRANSCONTINENTAL LINE

By G. B. Cady.
Special to The Morning News.

Beaumont, Tex., May 11.—With a day of pleasure a memory, Waco, central Texas and Beaumont interests tonight practically guaranteed $350,000 for the Waco-Beaumont railroad proposed by John L. Spurlin of Hamilton. The pledging followed a great banquet at the Crosby hotel here, where over a hundred were seated and enthusiasm was contagious.

W. P. Hobby, editor of the Beaumont Enterprise, and Leon Sonfield presided, and addresses were made by Mr. Spurlin, who predicted that the road would develop into a transcontinental one; that the Panama canal would greatly benefit it, and that Beaumont would become the largest inland port in the United States.

Feasible for Harbor.

Peyton Randle of Waco said that the Beaumont port was most practicable and feasible for a harbor, and W. L. Hill of Huntsville said the proposed road would change the rail and rate map of Texas.

The feature speech of the evening was delivered by Capt. M. B. Davis of Waco, who announced that he had come on the wedding trip of Waco and Beaumont, and said that the road would pass through one of the greatest undeveloped sections of Texas. He paid a high tribute to Artemas R. Roberts of Waco, who, he said, was the custodian of Aladdin's lamp.

W. L. Hill of Huntsville, a former legislator and drafter of the I. & G. N. bill, guaranteed $100,000 and right of way through Walker county.

E. W. Marshall for Waco said the Brazos city would duplicate any Beaumont offer. Beaumont offers $75,000 and right of way. Fairfield offers $25,000, Trinity $25,000 and Groveton offers the Katy "Orphan." Madisonville also offers $25,000.

Stress on the possible harbor facilities in Beaumont, and the country to be traversed by the proposed road was the idea uppermost at the banquet.

INTERSTATE BOARD ORDERS "FEEDER" RATES TO STAND

By The Associated Press.

Washington, May 11.—The interstate commerce commission late today issued an order requiring western rail carriers to put into effect and maintain for two years from June 13, 1912, the rates on "feeder" cattle and sheep defined in the report of the commission in March 11, this year. In effect this order retains the rates on stock cattle and sheep which have been in force for a long time, the cancellation by the railroads of the lower rates on such livestock being presented by the commission as unreasonable. The proposition of the railroads meant an increase of 33 1-2c on such traffic.

DIES IN HOTEL FIRE.

By The Associated Press.

Amarillo, Tex., May 11.—Henry Brown was burned to death today in a fire which destroyed the Raymond hotel here. Dozens of guests fled from the burning building in their night clothing. Brown, who had lived here several years, leaves no family. He was 55 years old.

KILLED BY LIGHTNING WHILE "ON THE PHONE"

By The Associated Press.

Waxahachie, Tex., May 11.—Mrs. E. L. Kurkendall, who lived a few miles south of here, was killed by lightning yesterday while talking over a telephone during a rain storm.

ROAD WILL MEAN MUCH FOR THIS PART OF STATE

GREAT POSSIBILITIES SEEN IN PROPOSED WACO-BEAUMONT ROAD BY BOOSTER CROWD.

Closer Haul to Tide Water Will Be Afforded Central Texas by New Way.

Beaumont, Tex., May 11.—The fact that the Neches river has a disease for a name has nothing to do with that river's possibilities, the deep canal to the gulf or the advantages to both Waco and Beaumont when linked with the proposed Waco-Beaumont railroad.

Great, all in capital letters, is the unanimous decision tonight of all Waco and central Texas boosters, who, with the Beaumont Chamber of Commerce as host, made a trip today down the river from Beaumont to the Sabine-Neches canal, a distance at present of twenty-eight miles, through the canal a distance of eight miles to Port Arthur, and through the deep water canal and through the jetties and into the gulf, nine miles. Returning to Sabine, the trip back to Beaumont was made on a special train, and a monster banquet tonight at the Crosby house concluded the entertainment. An automobile ride over the city this morning and to the Country club was the opener.

The present distance from Beaumont to the Sabine-Neches canal is to be reduced to twenty-five miles by cutting off bends with an appropriation of $200,000, which was the surplus left from the original appropriation, a lower bid than was estimated having been accepted. A turning basin for ships of perhaps fifty acres will also be dredged within four blocks of the business section. Aside from one jagged point, the river to the canal is practically ready for big ship navigation now, and this point will first be eliminated. The channel of the river now varies from thirty to forty-six feet, and the canals vary from twenty-six to thirty feet in depth.

By the proposed Waco-Beaumont railway, Waco and central Texas will be afforded a much closer haul to tide water, and excellent facilities will be provided here. City wharfs have been built and more are planned in Beaumont, insuring against exorbitant charges. Central Texas cotton may be diverted to Beaumont, and in this respect Waco benefits in exports. As to imports, benefits will be derived from decreased freight rates.

Beaumont will benefit as a result of lower import rates and lower export rates for the lumber and oil industry.

One great feature of the Sabine-Neches canal is the fact that the upkeep will be practically nothing, the current having already deepened the channel. When finally completed, the canal will be 125 feet wide and 25 feet deep for a width of 90 feet.

Over a hundred made the trip down the river on the houesboat La Salle today, and it was one pleasant feature from beginning to end. A stop was made at Port Arthur, where another automobile tour was given and the docks and other places of interest were visited.

Luncheon and refreshments were on tap all day, and a negro orchestra added to the entertainment. From Port Arthur, government tugs were used to make the trip to the gulf.

WHO IS WHO ?

$20.00 REWARD

Who's Who in Waco

To correct the impression that seems to have lodged in the minds of many that I am the man referred to in the "Who's Who" articles now appearing in that live wire daily, The Waco Morning News, I desire to state emphatically that I am not the man. The picture of the "Who's Who" man shows only the back of his head, and it does not take a close observer to discover on the center of that head a spot as bald as the arid deserts of Africa. Notwithstanding my water bucket is covered all over with short bristles that stick out like the stubble on a pig's back, I have had to let more than nine million people look at the back of my head during the past week, people of all ages and kinds, who are anxious to annex that twenty dollars reward to their own bank accounts. Some of those people seemed to take offense because I have not cultivated a bald spot, as the remark was heard more than once that I ought to be the man, as my head looked as "nutty," or more so, as the head of the man in the picture. Of course, I am always more than pleased to oblige my friends and the general public at all hours, day and night; in fact, I won my spurs for being obliging on the field of polite endeavor, and I yield to no man, not even a candidate, when it comes to being obliging. But there is a limit to human endurance, and I'll be hanged if the limit hasn't been more than reached when a man has to answer the same question of "Are you the Who's Who man?" more than nine thousand nine hundred and ninety-nine times in one week. I don't mind having my houn' dog kicked aroun', but this "Who's Who" question has gotta stop, and I here and now warn every man, woman and child in this county that I am loaded to the muzzle with the biggest and best Spring Suit Bargains for Men ever brought to Waco, and that, too, just when the men need a new Spring Suit. $25 Suits go for $18.75, $20 Suits for $14.90, $18.50 Suits for $13.90, $15 Suits for $11.25, and for the entire week I am going to unload some real live bargains in Straw Hats and Men's Furnishing Goods, too.

Sunday in the Churches

ANNOUNCEMENTS BY THE PASTORS.

Central Presbyterian—"Motherhood and Its Heritage" will be the subject of the pastor's discourse at the Central Presbyterian Church Sunday, May 12th.

That American men still retain their their "befo' de wah" chivalry was proved when that great body, the Presbyterian Assembly, organized a national Mother's Day, a day in which to especially honor motherhood. Many fields are open to women on this day, but 'tis still true that "the hand that rocks the cradle" is the hand that rules the world. The true woman finds her greatest honor, joy and happiness when her sons and daughters and their fathers rise up and call her blessed.

The old mother who has finished her work and is only waiting is invited to come; also the young mother just tasting the joy and responsibilities of motherhood, come and bring your babe. You broken-hearted mother with empty arms, pin on your white rose, emblem of your love and God's come and the preacher will help you to get near to the great heart of the Father, and you will be comforted. Everybody come and enjoy the musical program which promises to be something exceptional. There will be a quartette by Mrs. J. G. Wren, Mrs. W. B. Thompson, Messrs. S. H. Myers and W. S. Millett; also a duet by Mrs. J. G. Wren and Mrs. W. B. Thompson. Everybody wear a flower—white preferred. Those who come without will be supplied at the church.

There will be no service at night, as everybody is expected to attend the union revival on the Austin avenue lawn.

Clay Street Baptist.—Pastor Boyles announces special services at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m., Sunday May 12, at the Clay Street Baptist church, marking his first anniversary as pastor of this church. The church is located at the corner of Clay and 11th streets. There will be special music led by a large chorus and orchestra. Large audiences are expected at both the morning and the evening hours.

See the Monday papers for full and definite announcements for the Ham meetings, beginning Monday evening. Let all parents send their children to the First church direct from school Monday, May 13, to meet Evangelist Ham, who will organize the junior choir to sing in the great revival campaign beginning Monday night, May 13. A junior choir of over 200, and a senior chorus fully as large and a fine orchestra will lead the music in the meetings announced. These meetings are to be at the First Baptist church at noon daily and at the tabernacle, 9th and Clay streets every night. Watch the daily papers.

Columbus Street Baptist—There will be services today as usual, preaching at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. There will be special music at both services Anthem by the choir at the 11 o'clock service, and at the evening service the service will be in the hands of the Baraca class. They will render a program, and in this program there will be a male quartette, beside other good things. You should not miss this service, it will do you good to be there and you will enjoy it. Come and bring all of your young men friends. Everybody, of course, are invited. Good music all through both services and a general good time for everybody. MEMBER.

Central Christian Church—The features of the Mothers' Day service at Central Christian church, corner 11th and Washington, will be such as to attract the interest of many who are not regular church-goers. Any man or woman who desires, whether a Christian or not, is invited to bring a boquet—preferably of white carnations or roses—in memory of his mother. A large space at the railing will be preserved for these memorials. Also every man is asked to wear a white carnation or rose. Bring some extra for the visitors.

Mrs. Aubrey Meador will sing a song appropriate to Mothers' Day. There will be other specially fit music, including some by the men. Bro. Hall will preach a Mothers' Day sermon. This is the regular day for the children's sermon, so the Sunday school young folks will stay for church.

There will be no evening preaching service, as this congregation is uniting in the union revival on 12th and Austin.

The county convention of the Christian churches will have a session at 3:30 p. m.

Central Christian Sunday School—Mothers' Day begins 9:45 a. m. with opening piano solo. Every pupil is requested to bring their father or mother, and wear a flower. Opening song, "Let a Little Sunshine In." Opening prayer for the mothers. Explanation of commandment of Moses "Honor your father and mother, that your days may be long upon the earth." Five minute supplemental work. Reading the morning lesson, Jesus Speaking: "But I say unto you, love your enemies, do good to them which hate you. Bless them that curse you and pray for them which despitefully use you, and unto him that smiteth thee on the one cheek offer also the other. And as ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise. Love your enemies, and do good and lend, hoping for nothing again; and your reward shall be great, and ye shall be the children of the highest, for He is kind unto the unthankful and to the evil. Be ye therefore merciful, as your Father also is merciful. Judge not, and ye shall not be judged; condemn not, and ye shall not be condemned; forgive and ye shall be forgiven. Give, and it shall be given unto you; good measure, pressed down, and shaken together and running over, shall men give into your bosom. For with the same measure that ye mete, withal it shall be measured to you again," etc. After 20 minutes lesson study, reassembling of school, Junior song, report of state convention, Children's Day announcements and closing song. Delightful hour—all cordially invited

North Waco Christian Church—18th and Herring. Service opens at 7:45 p. m. with piano solo. Song by Miss Ruth Wortham's class of Juniors. Opening congregational sentence prayers. Song, "The Glory Song." Scripture reading "The Mother of Samuel." Violin solo by J. A. Minier, accompanied by his mother. Evening's address, "The Love of Mother," by Judge Tom L. McCullough. Song of invitation, "Come to Jesus." All cordially invited.

EVANGELIA SETTLEMENT WORKERS ARE ACTIVE

THOUGH PLEASED WITH PROGRESS MADE, WOMEN PUSH CAMPAIGN WITH VIGOR.

The women of the board of Evangelia Settlement and the men who are interested in the building fund are grateful over the splendid start toward the fund in the first four days' work. One-third of the sum needed was already secured when the teams met on Friday morning and more is already in sight. The solicitors are working steadily, so that the work may be completed quickly and the building may go on during the summer when some of the departments of work may not be so large as in the winter. The work of seeing all the friends of Evangelia would be greatly facilitated if others who are not on the committee would volunteer in securing pledges. The women say they would like to hear from 500 people by telephone with subscriptions according to their ability. Mr. John Rowe, chairman, or Mr. R. G. Patton, vice chairman, or Mr. Bart Moore, or Mrs. Allan Sanford, or Miss Van Fleet, or any other member of the committee will be glad to answer telephone calls of this kind. If the remainder of the pledge can be secured in a reasonable time, the plans will not need to be reduced or the work to be retarded.

The sum which has been decided upon is none too large to do a nice job in the building and playgrounds and one that shall keep pace with similar institutions in other Texas cities. The settlement home in Houston has twelve rooms and a neat playground. In Fort Worth a whole block and three residences have been utilized for kindergarten, nursery, reading room and residence portion.

In Dallas a beautiful new settlement building was erected last summer. Many thousands of dollars have been spent by other Texas cities in play grounds alone and other thousands for buildings in which to do the lines of work now being done in Evangelia House.

PLANS TO STOP TOWNS FROM OVER-CHURCHING

Oklahoma Congregational Conference Resolution Committee Appointed to Confer.

Special to The Morning News.

Lawton, Okla., May 11.—Following out the line of thought set forth in a sermon of the Rev. Mr. McKeen of Goltry, delivered on the subject of the community church, he Congregational church conference of Oklahoma today adopted a resolution favoring the co-operation of Protestant churches in the elimination of "over-churching" small village communities and named a committee, composed of the Rev. Mr. McKeen, R. R. Shoemaker of El Reno, Alonzo Early of Medford, A. M. Darling of Oaktaha, and J. W. Scroggs of Kingfisher, to co-operate with prospective similar committees from other churches of denominations in the smaller towns by uniting church interests.

Committee Means Business.

"This committee means business, too," declared the chairman today. "It was not appointed as a matter of form."

In his address the Rev. McKeen declared that, while the small community church is one of the most important features of the work of the church today, it is being reduced to ineffectiveness simply because church prejudice and the spirit of "our church first, the devil take the others" is preventing co-operation among adherents of various organizations in the smaller communities.

"The village church is now a failure," he declared, "because of a lack of vision in the ministry, a lack of vision among church members, the over-churching of communities, the narrowing of church to merely spiritual instead of all phases of life and the poverty of the people in permitting the building of a machine to operate the work of the church. The rivalry of churches has brought empty pews, closed church doors and starved ministers. It encourages prejudice, fastens ignorance and damns souls.

"We must either Christianize in the broadest sense of the word," he said, "or else get out and allow the country to go into Paganism."

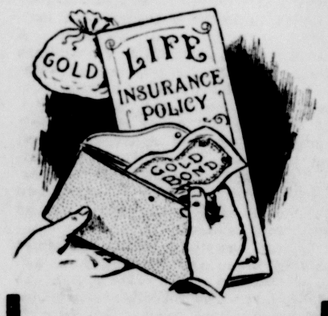

His idea, and the idea expressed by the conference today, is to arrange between denominations, so that churches will not overlap, but may be united in the similar communities, so that one good church may be built up where a half dozen or three or four poor ones now try to exist.

WANTS CENTRAL MARKET ON CITY HALL SITE

Y. M. B. L. CIVIC IMPROVEMENT COMMITTEE URGES PLAN TRUCKERS FAVOR.

That the present city hall is inadequate, and should be torn down to make room for a central market house on the site, and the city hall moved to a more suitable location, where the interests of the people would be better served, is the belief of the civic improvement committee of the Young Men's Business League. In a communication, the committee, composed of William Johnson, Joe Willis and E. N. McNute, states that it is in favor of a central market house, as planned by the McLennan county Fruit and Truck Association, which announced recently that a temporary location had been secured on Franklin street, between Fifth and Sixth streets, where the market will be located until more suitable quarters can be secured.

A grand central market house, similar to the one at Houston and San Antonio is urged.

WOMAN CONSTABLE IS BOXING EXPERT

Special to The Morning News.

San Jose, Cal., May 11.—Mrs. William F. Curry, wife of William F Curry, clerk of the justice court of San Jose township, has been sworn in as a deputy constable to serve without pay. The appointment was made by Constable M. F. Marshall.

Interesting stories are told of Mrs. Curry's physical prowess, and although she has not yet made her first arrest, it is expected she will give a good account of herself should she have occasion. Every morning she dons the padded mitts with her husband and they start the day with a lively three-round go.

That she has a punch in either fist was demonstrated recently when she took a hand in a domestic quarrel in her neighborhood and administered a beating to a husband who was abusing his wife.

A SURPRISE SHOWER FOR MRS. DORANCE BYARS

It is very seldom that such a genuine surprise comes as did that with which the choir of the Columbus Baptist church and other honored Mrs. Dorance Byars on Friday afternoon. This took place in the home of Mrs. J. M. Keith and was decidedly a social occasion. There were many more than the choir to enjoy the afternoon and to become participants in the shower. It seems that this was the friendship thought of those who knew that Mrs. Byars had lost all her home furnishings by fire. She was invited as any other guest, without the intimation that hers was to be the honored position in this gay company. The parlors were decorated with a cob web. Every one has heard of a cob web party, so no suspicion came from that source. When the tracing of the cob webs began there was still no suspicion. Mrs. Byars took her web along with the others, but, great was her wonder when her thread led to a heap of bundles, the gifts of the friends who gathered to see her emotion, for genuine emotion it was when she found all that loving friendship had done for her and read the tender sentiment which had been inscribed. This feature over, there were two toasts offered, one by Mrs. J. B. Naylor, president of the society, and the other by Mrs. E. E. Fitzhugh. During the afternoon the talent of the guests contributed music, both voice and piano. These were the Misses Keith, Mrs. Byars and Miss Byars. Miss Elizabeth Morrow also gave some readings. This was one of the largest and most significant social affairs of the closing week and places some muchly appreciated pieces in Mrs. Byars' home.

MR. AND MRS. LEE DAVIS DINED AT THE HUACO CLUB

The regular dinner dance at the Huaco club found an unusually large attendance. There were several small dinner parties, but that upon which the greatest interest centered was the dinner where Mrs. W. H. Roberts was hostess in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Davis of Mississippi, who are already speeding homeward. This was a sweet pea dinner, and a beautiful one. The natural blossom made the center mound which, after the coffee, dissolved into a corsage bouquet for each woman guest. There were also sweet peas in the art for the twelve place cards. There was other beautiful service from the club chef, and much by way of merriment for a congenial group. There was adjournment for the dance, where the evening was whiled. Mrs. Roberts, in paying this courtesy to Mr. and Mrs. Davis, also complimented Mrs. Susan Downs, Miss Minnie Taylor, Dick Downs, A. E. Shaeffer, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Sanford, Mr. and Mrs. William Talley, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Gray Kendall.

BAPTIST WOMEN AGAIN ASK FOR MAGAZINE DONATIONS

The distribution of free literature from the courthouse attempted by the Columbus Baptist Aid has been quite a success. The placards put at suitable places has created a demand which can not be met. There also has been placed a notice in Riverside park, where men for their noon's rest or out of work are beginning to congregate. These have eagerly gone to the tax office to secure a magazine. Better this, far, than loafing around the places of vice. Therefore, the women are again requesting that any who have magazines which have served in the home, send these to Lee Davis at the courthouse, or report the same to Mrs. R. B. Spencer, Mrs. R. V. McClain or Mrs. Lee Davis, and they will be called for and taken to the place of distribution.

THE FIRST WORD COMES FROM MRS. W. H. JOHNSON

There has been chronicled the departure of Mrs. William Johnson on a visit to her two sisters in Arizona. The first home word has come and it says that the Morning News follows her wherever she goes, and that it makes her feel every day that she has chatted with some of her friends. The postcard shows a charming bit of mountain scenery around Clifton, Mrs. Johnson's first stop. She writes that the little town is beautifully situated right in the heart of the mountains; that the weather is glorious, and the people assure her that her visit will be made pleasureable.

WACO AUDIENCE TO HEAR MISS BEULA DUNCAN

It has been announced socially that Miss Beula Duncan was down from New York City to spend a month among her old friends. It is now announced that these same friends are to have the pleasure of Miss Duncan in concert. The Ad club, together with the Fifth street Mission society, will patronize a recital by Miss Duncan at the Auditorium next Thursday evening. A choice program will be presented at this time with Miss Duncan in prominent place.

FISH POND SEASON OPENS; IS ALREADY POPULAR

Almost every evening mention is made of some party out at the Fish Pond for its al fresco pleasures. There went out for supper on Friday evening a party of the Baylor boys, with the girls, under the chaperonage of Mr. and Mrs. M. C. H. Park, and their household guests, Mrs. Paul Montgomery of Oklahoma, and Mrs. Raybor from Morgan. There was a sunset supper and in informal dance in the club house for the later hour.

MR. AND MRS SHUMWAY MOVE TO SUMMER HOME

The first permanent change for the summer season finds Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Shumway in their new cottage over at Lake O'Connell. They have been installed a week only. Later in the season it is their intention to keep open house, in a measure, for their friends, who will be invited over for fishing and the other pleasures of an outing.

WOMEN ARE RESPONDING TO CALL FOR FLOOD VICTIMS

All over the city are women are responding to the call for assistance in clothing, or it may be portable food, for the Mississippi flood sufferers. If others are as prompt and as generous as the Waco women, great relief will go to these unfortunate people. There is not only the immediate desolation of shelter, food and clothes, the loss of home supplies and the animals for food and work purposes, but there is bound to come an immense amount of sickness from the very nature of conditions after the waters subside. The decay of animal flesh and the debris left by the receding waters make the condition of fellow man something more than deserving of sympathy. This is the case where there is no doubt as to the worthy cause for charity.

MISS ELSIE SIMMONS HAS THE GIRLS' BRIDGE

One of the largest games yet formed with the Girls' bridge was that which found Miss Elsie Simmons hostess. There were a number of visitors in the city, among them being a relative of Miss Simmons, Mrs. Schwartz. In compliment to Mrs. Schwartz three tables were added to the regular game and the out of town visitors given special invitation. Thus, a delightful afternoon was spent. The leading score for the club was made by Mrs. Milton Strauss. Miss Ray Naman made second score, while Miss Nettie Efron led in the guest count. The social feature centered around the refreshment service.

THE DOMESTIC CLUB MEETS WITH MRS. DEWEY

There was nothing out of the ordinary routine with the session of the Domestic club on Friday. The hostess was Mrs. Lee Dewey, who had present as special guests two of her neighbors, Mesdames Ray Rowell and Womack, also Mrs. Aubrey Lee of Coleman. The main feature of this circle of young matrons other than the promotion of sociability is the exchange of recipes. This means that when one makes a susine "find," she passes it on. Mrs. Dewey was quite happy in her choice of refreshments for this afternoon.

ROUND TABLE CLOSES; WILL HAVE A PICNIC

The last regular meeting of the Round Table occurred with Mrs. Spencer on Speight street. It remains now for the social day in the woods which the club enjoys annually with all the children. The new course of study is not definite, but there is the outlook that it will touch on sociology. The new roster of officers is: President, Mrs. A. H. Newman; vice president, Mrs J. B. Johnson; secretary, Mrs. J. L. Kesler; treasurer, Miss Louise Willis.

A SUNSET SUPPER SERVED AT CAMERON PARK

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Davis received their first taste of life at Cameron park under most favorable auspices. This was a sunset supper with Mr. and Mrs. Ben Gray Kendall, Mr. and Mrs. Ned Marshall, Frank Marshall, Mrs. Susan Downs and Mrs. W. H. Roberts. This was a compliment from Mrs. Allan Sanford and Mrs. William Talley.

THE FRIDAY BRIDGE PLAYS WITH MRS. W. B. BRAZELTON

The last game of the Friday bridge found Mrs. W. B. Brazelton hostess, with Mesdames Chester Story and Ed Sturgis winners of the game trophies. There was nothign beyond the accustomed routine. Mrs. William Neale is the next hostess.

SPECIAL NOTICE TO WOMEN FOR THE COMING WEEK

It is especially desired to make personal mention of the women who come to enjoy the social side of the Knights of Pythias convention. All hostesses who expect to entertain such visitors are requested to report the same to the Morning News, editor of the woman's department.

Society Notes.

The pleasant news is heard that Mrs. A. C. Prendergast comes from Austin to spend the greater part of the summer here. Mesdames Skinner, Conoly and Prendergast will be joint matrons in a summer home yet to be selected.

Miss Edna Ewing will join Mesdames Holloway Smith and A. B. Warner in their trip to California. The party leaves in early June.

Mrs. B. S. Baker of North Eighteenth, who has been extremely ill, is reported as much improved.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Wells are making ready for their accustomed vacation trip to Canada. They leave a few days after the close of Baylor University.

It is now known that Mrs. R. B. Killough Jr. will not resume her piano classes at Baylor another year.

The mission conference at Cleburne, which was held during the past week, paid Miss Alma Sullenberger the compliment of re-electing her director of the study course in the various mission societies of this conference.

Dr. and Mrs. J. B. Johnson of the Baylor colony are preparing to spend the summer in New York City, where Dr. Johnson will take a course in Columbia university.

Mrs. Hardesty has arrived from New Orleans to spend several weeks with her sisters, the Misses Kinnard, on South Fourth, before joining Dr. Hardesty in a summer tour of Europe.

There is now expected to leave in a few days for Oklahoma City, Mrs. J. W. Byars, Mrs. E. E. Fitzhugh, Mrs. J. B. Taylor, Dr. and Mrs. F. C. McConnell, Mrs. W. W. Kendall and Miss Elizabeth Speight. These go for the Southern Baptist convention.

The Review Club is preparing for its annual social session with the retiring president, Mrs. R. H. Hill, on Tuesday afternoon.

There is now preparing at Temple Rodef Sholem quite an interesting confirmation class. Elaborate detail will mark this event, which comes in June.

The girls are doing moderately well in telling of their matrimonial plans, but there are yet several who might do better.

Cards have come from Mrs. A. F. Bolton and Miss Frankie Bolton, telling of their delightful sojourn in California, of the great improvement in Mrs. Bolton's health, and that they may be expected home early in the coming week. They have been absent several months.

Encourage the children to have their all day picnics and their afternoon outings. This will teach them to love nature.

Did the young man call at your door asking for a subscription for some literature, in order that he might get a scholarship? The story now is that that same young man, apparently so enterprising, is behind prison bars for fraud. There was no scholarship, and he wanted none. Detectives traced him and this is his disgrace. So the story goes. In any event we should be careful before we patronize the agent at the door. Some are genuinely worthy and need encouragement. Others, we are only encouraging in their road to crime.

If the down-town shops respond to the request to decorate for the Knights of Pythias, women should join in giving the gala appearance by putting the colors on the whip handles. Waco is not sufficiently responsive in this matter. The tiny bow is nothing, but that same tiny bow seen everywhere means public spirit and the evidence of hospitality everywhere and in every heart. Why are the civic leagues so silent? There is plenty to be done right now.

There will be a general congregation of friends in the Friedlander home today, since congratulations are in order for Miss Sadie Friedlander over her engagement to Eli Marks.

Everybody must get into the spirit for the great revival which is about to open.

The cub women are almost packing their suit cases for the trip to California, in the hopes of electing as general federation president their Texas woman, Mrs. Percy V. Pennypacker of Austin. No one is going from Waco, but the state will send quite a creditable delegation.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rotan had a small dinner party at the Huaco en Friday night in courtesy to Frank Marshall, who is down from Norfolk on an old home visit. The other guests were Dr. and Mrs. Hale and Mrs. Charles Boyton.

The visit of Mrs. Lee Davis was crowded with social pleasure, and more would have been shown them had the length of their stay permitted.

Dr. and Mrs. Irwin Colgin, with Miss Mildred Adams, left in their automobile yesterday for an overland trip to the Frazier ranch near Morgan, where they will be Sunday guests.

Society Personals.

Dr. and Mrs. Lankford of San Antonio, were up for the medical convention, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Dilworth.

Mrs. J. A. Loughridge returned home from Austin on Friday.

Mrs. Annie Dilworth of North Thirteenth, is entertaining Miss Jean Lankford of San Antonio.

Mrs. Margaret Harris of Dallas, is visiting in the Thomas Padgitt home.

After a short stay with Mrs. Tom T. Harrington, also Mrs. W. H. Jones, Mrs. Wall took home passage for Houston on Saturday.

Professor and Mrs. F. Arthur Johnson, who were with Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Wells on North Fourteenth for a few days, are again at home in Fort Worth.

Miss Katherine Red, who was the past week's guest of Mrs. B. N. Dean on Herring avenue, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Lewin Plunkett in Dallas before returning home to Houston.

Dr. and Mrs. S. C. Red, who were convention visitors to Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Plunkett, left for their home in Houston on Friday.

Mrs. Karl Cranz has made her home trip to Fort Worth. She had spent a few days with her mother, Mrs. W. S. Plunkett, on Herring avenue.

Rather unexpectedly, Mrs. Charles Langhorne returned to Richmond, Va., on Friday.

Mrs. Otis Johnson has arrived from Georgia on a visit to the C. L. Johnson home, Austin and 18th.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Baine are at home from their month's trip through the East.

Mrs. Richard Burleson of the south side, is visiting in Clarksville.

Mrs. W. L. Perry and Miss Irene Perry, of North Thirteenth, reached home yesterday. They had attended the Mission conference in Cleburne.

Mesdames W. J. Wigley and J. P. Sample are at home from Cleburne, where they went as delegates from the Austin avenue church to the Mission conference.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Naylor of North Ninth, entertained Dr. and Mrs. Naylor from Stephenville during the medical convention.

Mrs. Potter Kemper is due from Wharton tomorrow. She visits in the home of her father, A. F. Bolton, on South Fourth.

Miss Janet Gorman is spending a week with the Misses Gamill in their country home near Aquilla.

Mrs. Raybor of Morgan, was yesterday's guest of Mrs. M. C. H. Park on South Fifth.

Miss Minnie Taylor of South Fourth, is at home from a few days in Houston.

After a visit to her sisters, the Misses Rose, on Franklin street, Mrs. Aubrey Lee is taking home passage for Coleman today.

Mrs. Joel Westbrook left yesterday to spend two weeks at Hot Springs.

Mr. and Mrs. William Neale are down at Bonita for a few days.

Mrs. Naylor, who visited her sister, Mrs. S. P. McLendon, has returned home to Houston.

The homecoming of Mrs. Julia Henry from El Paso occurs today.

C. A. Richardson and Miss Geraldine Richardson, who came with the remains of little Leonora Richardson, returned home to Beaumont on Friday.

Mrs. D. M. Wilson of Washington street, is entertaining her sister, Mrs. Martin, of Clarendon.

Miss Elizabeth Caufield and her guest, Miss Martin, of Clarendon, is with Mrs. Thomas Caufield, Terrace Row, for a few days.

Mrs. Arthur Connally of Caufield ranch, was the visitor of the past week to Mrs. Thomas Caufield.

KILLED UNDER REARING HORSE

By The Associated Press.

San Angelo, May 11.—Pinioned underneath when his horse reared and fell back, 19-year-old Grover C. Porter was instantly killed recently on the Sam Williams ranch in Schleicher county. Porter lived with his father on a ranch forty miles south of San Angelo. He was assisting in a round-up on the Williams ranch.

Porter often boasted that no horse could throw him. He was a good rider and a well known broncho buster. Witnesses say the young man was taken unawares when the horse reared back and fell. Porter thought he could stop the horse in his backward fall by hitting it behind the ears, a method always effective by West Texas cowboys, bit it failed. He tried to release himself from the stirrups but this also failed and he went down under the horse.

LEAVES HOUSE TO ESCAPE "BOOK AGENT;" ALL HE LEAVES

By The Associated Press.

Houston, May 11.—Mrs. W. J. McMahan of 1117 San Jacinto street, this city, is firmly convinced that it is sorry business to dodge book agents. She saw a young man approaching her home whom she supposed was engaged in that business, and promptly left the place to keep from encountering him. When she returned later she found her home had been ransacked and much in the way of cash and valuables taken. She told her story to Justice Crooker at the examining trial of W. J. Young, a young man charged with the burglary. Young was held to the grand jury.

SPEND MERRY EVENING.

On Friday evening, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Medlin, 1310 North Ninth street, a crowd of Second Presbyterian church adherents and their friends gathered. The fishing seemed so good throughout the evening that many eager Ike Waltonites failed to get near the pond, and it will take weeks to tell all the fish stories. Of the higher order entertainment, mention may well be made of the giving of "The Raving Maniac" by Mrs. M. P. Warren of Midlothian, Tex. As soloist, Mrs. Charlie Glatz was probably entitled to the ribbon. Those who have heard Miss Gladys Reisner on the piano and Mrs. Lottie May Medlin Haynes on the violin can have some conception of what those missed who were not present. No collection nor free-will offering had any part in the event, though the Earnest Workers each turned in a self-earned dollar.

EPISCOPAL COUNCIL FOR WACO.

The sixty-fourth annual meeting of the diocesan council of the Protestant Episcopal church will be held in Waco. This city as chosen at the session of the council at Houston. The Rev W. P. Witsell, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, extended on the part of Waco.

WIFE WITNESSES HER HUSBAND SINK IN LAKE

W. E. Shelton Drowned in Cotton Belt While Spouse Stood By Helpless.

Standing on the bank within a short distance of where W. E. Shelton of near Axtell met death Friday afternoon in the Cotton Belt lake, and powerless to aid him in his desperate and futile struggle for life, was his wife. She shrieked for help, but no one was near and her husband went down.

The funeral will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Burial will be in the Elks' cemetery.

MINNESOTA SLIPPING TO T. R. IN PRIMARIES

RETURNS FROM COUNTIES THUS FAR SHOW TEDDY LEADING TAFT 3 TO 1.

By The Associated Press.

St. Paul, Minn., May 11.—Returns from the presidential primaries held in a large number of counties today indicate that Roosevelt is running ahead of Taft 3 to 1 in nearly all of them. In Ramsey county (St. Paul) it is estimated that Roosevelt will have at least two-thirds of the delegates.

4 to 1 in St. Paul.

Col. Roosevelt carried all but 8 of the 133 precincts in this city in the preferential primary tonight over President Taft by majorities of about 4 to 1.

According to the returns, Taft will have nine delegates to the convention at Minneapolis, La Follette five, and Roosevelt the other sixty-seven.

County conventions on Monday will settle the doubt in any county where the contest is close.

CLEAR UP BLOODY BEAT.

By The Associated Press.

Birmingham, May 11.—A remarkable beginning was made in the criminal courts of Jones county this week in cleaning up the Lewisburg murder mysteries. Three white men were arrested for the murder of John Holland. Arthur Jones and Will Watson were given the death penalty and Will Jones life imprisonment for the crime. Lewisburg had more than twenty murders within a year, and for weeks the state and county authorities have been working to clear up what is called "bloody beat 22." Numerous men are in jail charged with the various crimes, and the work of the criminal courts this week represents the first tangible work in cleaning up the lawless gang.

TAFT SIGNS PENSION BILL.

By The Associated Press.

Washington, May 11.—The president tonight signed the increased pension bill passed by the house and senate.

The bill as finally agreed to creates an increase of $35,000,000 for pensions during the first year of its operation. During the first three years the increased payments to veterans will average $22,000,000.

The bill provides increases of $420,975 veterans' pensions according to estimates. Every veteran serving ninety days or more in the naval or military service in the civil who has been honorably discharged and who is over 62 years old is cared for in the new law.

200 CONTESTS LIKELY TO FACE CONVENTION

By The Associated Press.

Chicago, May 11.—Members of the republican national committee expect they will be called upon to decide nearly 200 contests between June 6 and the opening of the convention, June 8. Up to today formal notices of only seven contests have been filed. They concern delegates from Mississipspi and South Carolina.

CHINESE ROASTED ALIVE.

By The Associated Press.

Victoria, B. C., May 11.—Many Chinese in Lihasa, capital of Thibet, were roasted alive during an attack on their quarters by angry Thibetans. In the fighting many were killed on both sides. The rioting grew out of a declaration by the llama, who said the Chinese were destined for divine punishment.

ELECTROCUTED BY STORM.

By The Associated Press.

Middlesboro, Ky., May 11.—One man is dead and property valued at $50,000 was destroyed tonight in a storm that swept over this section of Kentucky. A. T. Smith, a druggist of this city, was electrocuted while telephoning, lightning striking the wire. Two buildings were set on fire by lightning in the city while much damage was done in the country by wind and rain.

CHARGED WITH BURGLARY.

Charged with burglary, Harry Shaw was arrested early Saturday morning by Special Officer Frank Blair. The young man, according to the officer was in the act of burglarizing the store of the Waco Electric & Supply Company, 613 Austin avenue, when taken in custody. He is being held in the city awaiting transfer to the county jail.

SANDWICH SELLERS MIX.

The rivalry existing between Greek and negro vendors of sandwiches at the union station reached a climax late Saturday afternoon, and as a result of the mix-up, Garfield Williams, negro, was badly injured about the head. Officers Beans and Rotan placed J. Pinto, Joe Miller, Joe Angelo and Garfield Williams under arrest, charged with fighting. All were released on bond.

SOME PARTIALITY.

The Hennessey (Oklahoma) Clipper found the following letter in its mail box the other morning:

"Mistr editer: I want to noe why hit is that you use so infernal much partiality in your little ole paper. Me an my folks has bin visitin half dusin time lately an you never sed one word about hit. You run after the big bugs and let the little ones goe. I have been thinkin of subscribin for the Clipper but I wont do hit now. You no he this is.

EL PASO TO CLAIM DAMAGES.

Special to The Morning News.

El Paso, May 11.—The El Paso claims for damages resulting from stray bullets which came across the border during the Madero battle in Cuidad Juarez are to be taken up and settled at once by Mexican Consul Enrique C. Llorente, according to statments made by the consul this week.

In addition to the El Paso claims, there are some property damage cases listed from Chihuahua and Douglas, which are docketed for consideration at the same time. The consul says these claims have been delayed because he has been buried in business and has not had time to take them up until now.

CELEBRATES ESCAPING ROPE BY MARRIAGE

OKLAHOMAN, FREED OF CHARGE OF MURDER, HIKES TO OWN WEDDING.

By The Associated Press.

Madill, Ok., May 11.—Within ten minutes after he had been freed by a jury for alleged complicity in the killing of James Ruth, a negro, here today, W. A. Thomas was married to Miss Mary Whitworth. Miss Whitworth had frequented the court room while Thomas was on trial, and when the verdict was announced they hurried away and were married. They were long-time friends.

CAN NOT ARGUE OWN CASES.

By The Associated Press.

Oklahoma City, May 11.—People convicted for crimes and whose cases have been affirmed by the criminal court of appeals will not be permitted to argue the issues in person with the members of the court.

Last week Judge Doyle of the criminal court delivered an opinion affirming the conviction of Sherman Shown of Oklahoma City for horse stealing, for which Shown was given five years in the penitentiary. Saturday Shown walked into Judge Doyle's office, and, asking the stenographer to leave the room, settled down to argue the matter with the judge in chambers.

After considerabl positive talk on the part of the judge Shown was told to send his attorney up. This was done and a motion for rehearing pending was overruled. The court telephoned the sheriff of Garfield county, where the conviction was obtained to come and get the prisoner.

ALABAMA DELEGATES TO VOTE FOR TEDDY

By The Associated Press.

Birmingham, May 11.—At the state convention of the Roosevelt adherents of Alabama held here today 12 delegates at large with one-half vote each were elected to the Chicago convention, and congressional district caucuses from the first, second, fifth and ninth district were also held and two delegates sent to Chicago. All delegates were given iron-clad Roosevelt instructions.

NEGRO "JACK THE RIPPER" TAKES ANOTHER VICTIM

By The Associated Press.

Atlanta, May 11.—"Jack the Ripper's" seventh victim in a year and a half was claimed last night. The body was found this morning, bearing several knife wounds. All the victims have been negro women. The colored population is greatly aroused.

New Haven, Conn., May 11.—The annual track meet between Yale and Princeton ended in a tie here this afternoon 58 1-2 to 58 1-2 points. Not until the last event had been concluded was the final result determined. Princeton scored heavily in the dashes and mile run and led Yale by a comfortable margin until the last event. No records were broken, but the events were closely contested. Track and weather conditions were excellent.

STREET CARS TO HIGHLAND PLACE

Arrangements have been made to build a street car line through Highland Place to connect with the Provident Heights line at 25th and Ethel. Material is being bought and construction will be commenced as soon as it is delivered on the ground. A. W. Koch & Co. desire to have the line in operation within sixty days.

The artesian well is completed and the water tower will be finished by June 1st. After which time water can be furnished and no doubt there will be a number of new houses built on Highland Place at once.

Neither does a woman have to go aboard a steamship to secure her rights and something more.

SELZ ROYAL BLUE SHOE

As the Camera Can Produce

See the new Selz models in our windows this week

YOU'VE been told by us that a Selz Royal Blue Shoe is its best argument; here we show you a new Selz model, just as the camera shows it.

The shoe itself looks even better; next time your downtown look in our windows; see the great variety of new Selz models shown for the first time in this city--shown exclusively at this store of good shoes.

Selz Royal Blue Shoes

$3.50 $4.00 $4.50 $5.00

You'll have a pleasant surprise when you put on your first pair of Selz shoes—they do not require breaking in; no need of breaking in any good shoes. When you wear your first pair of Selz shoes you'll walk away in shoes that feel as good as if you'd worn them a month. This is a feature that means better service, and better looks as well as comfort, because to "break in" a shoe you've got to really break it out—of shape; and that shortens the service and detracts from the appearance of the shoe.

CUIRASS, LIGHT AND NOT LESS UNRESISTING THAN STEEL, YET NOT STEEL, TO SHIELD SOLDIERS

French War Office Plans Making Cuirassiers Impregnable to Assaults of Missiles of Enemy; Substance a Secret

By George Dufresne.
Special to The Morning News.

Paris, May 11.—The French war office is testing a new type of cuirass for the Cuirassiers, the heaviest branch of the French cavalry. The existing model dates from 1854, and is of steel, but the new one now on trial is of only half the weight—that is to say, 7 1-2 pounds, instead of 15 pounds. The most striking feature of the new model is that it is not of metal. What the substance is the war office officials refuse to disclose, but they state that its power of resistance is quite equal to that of steel cuirass, in spite of its lesser weight. In addition, it is thought that it will have the advantage of doing away with all danger of reflecting light.

Weary of the monotony of keeping accounts day after day in an office, Louis Adams, a clerk, decided on taking a free and roving life, which,as he fondly imagined, might bring him fortune as well as amusement. After much reflection he came to the conclusion that the most practical way of attaining this object would be to appear in public as a freak. As, however, he had been gifted by nature with only the usual number of arms and legs, and was, in fact, as well proportioned as the great majority of his fellow creatures, he realized that artificial means must be employed if he was to excite curiosity; so off he went to an expert in tattooing. To him he confided his ambition, and the latter promised to make quite a spectacle of him, and, moreover, kept his word. When the work was finished the clerk, whose patience and endurance had certainly been worthy of a better cause, triumphantly presented himself for an engagement, which he was successful in securing then and there.

The tattooer had given him plenty for his money. Two little birds were perched on the head of this candidate for fame and fortune, who was easily to be identified by the initials which were to be seen on each of his cheeks. A palm tree, flanked by a couple of swallows, was conspicuous on his neck. Bracelets and an anchor on one arm, a man's head and a rose on the other, and figures of apaches, negroes, redskins, Mexicans and soldiers, with more ornithological and horticultural specimens all over his body, transformed him into an object which people flocked to see in a booth at a fair for the very reasonable price of 10 centimes.

But, unfortunately for the unlucky clerk, competitors in the same line of business were soon outshining him, and his thoughts have wandered back to the office at which he had spent so many peaceful, if rather dreary, hours, he determined on paying a visit to his old employer. The reception with which he met was not encouraging. "What an awful fright you are!" the merchant exclaimed. "That your arms and your body are tattooed all over does not matter, after all; but look at your face, your head and your neck. They are positively horrible. I'm willing to take you back, as you are sorry and have not prospered; but on one condition—if you are to be my clerk again, all these monstrous designs must be removed."

The unlucky man went to a hospital for a consultation, and the doctors whom he saw told him frankly that the thing was almost impossible, but that if he chose they would try. The odious tattoo marks were subjected to a temperature in comparison with which that of an ordinary oven would be mild, and the result was not altogether to the state of the patient, who complains that this severe treatment has caused stiffness in his joins. So he has taken legal action against the two physicians with a claim for damages amounting to $1200. The case has just been brought before the civil court of the Seine.

An amusing anecdote is told of ictorien Sardou, when he was curious to see the work of the guillotine, of which he had a holy horror, as he was strongly opposed to capital punishment. He attended the execution of Tropmann. He had secured a good place near the scaffold, and his surprise may be imagined when, as the van containing the accessories drew up, he beheld a smart young woman emerging from the big pannier which was to receive the murderer's corpse. Noticing his astonishment, a man went up to him and said: "Don't mind this, Monsieur Sardou; it is my wife. She was bent on witnessing the sight, and I adopted this little strategem to enable her to do so." The speaker was none other than the executioner, and Sardou had scarcely recovered from his surprise when one of the assistants walked up and coolly claimed acquaintance with him. "Don't you recognize me, Monsieur Sardou?" he said.

"I confess that I do not," was the reply.

"But I am one of your machinists. I was performing only last evening in one of your plays."

"And how about this morning?" Sardou asked. The man burst out laughing, and replied:

"You see, from time to time I do extras!"

All this was, as will be admitted, rather an odd prelude to the grim spectacle that was to follow. The executioner's wife had come stowed away in the pannier into which the body and then the head of the victim of the guillotine were to be thrown, and the man who assisted with the scenery simply regarded this as a good opportunity for getting an extra job. Sardou had no chance of interviewing Tropmann, with the object of ascertaining whether he was inclined to take an equally eccentric view of his position; but this queer adventure probably suggested thought which were reflected in some of his plays, as the contrast between the tragic and the comic side of the whole affair was so remarkable.

Japan is again the subject of an absorbing play. At the Odeon, however, M. Paul Anthelme's "L'Honneur Japonis" deals with the past, long before European civilization made its impress. It contains examples of barbaric virtues, and the traditional indifference to death when "honor" is concerned. Impressive as are many of the scenes, they lack the actuality which gives such charm to "L'Typhon." The piece is mounted with a strict adherence to artistic reality and is superbly interpreted.

There will be many Parisians to pity the plight of Prince Roulery Quibero Benhazin, son of King Gle Ge, and brother of the king of Dahomey, who gave France a great deal of trouble before he was dethroned. The prince, after a distinguished military career, has now to earn his own living by opening the door for the customers of a well-known cafe.

The prince, after deciding to fight for France, took part in no fewer than 28 campaigns. A brave soldier, he was thrice wounded in battle, and mentioned 13 times in dispatches. For his services the military medal was conferred upon him, and he received 11 colonial decorations.

Two years ago he came to Paris in the hope of inducing the government to grant him a pension. His request was unheeded. Then he asked for some sort of employment. Again his appeal fell on deaf ears. As a last resort he solicited the position of keeping a state tobacco shop. This was denied him, presumably on the ground that he was not a Frenchman. There may have been another reason. The prince is a negro.

The time came when he had to cast about for something to do, as the pittance paid to old soldiers was not enough to keep him. His position was desperate. He did not know how he was going to live from one day to another. So as not to die from starvation he worked successfully as a longshoreman, chauffeur and cinematographic actor. Now he is opening a cafe door all day long. He is a picturesque figure, Prince Behanzin, in his livery and his medals and decorations pinned on his breast.

In spite of Prince Behanzin's misfortune, in spite of the seeming ingratitude of France, the military ardor still burns within him. He was a prominent figure in the great military display at Vincennes the other day. He had a respite from his work as doorkeeper, and took part in the military fete in which 12,000 young men belonging to 250 military preparation societies in Paris and the suburbs, figured.

The government does its utmost to encourage these societies. It enables its members, when they are called to the colors, to select the regiment in which they will serve. General Manoury, the governor of Paris, inspected the societies. The groups were drawn up by the wards in which the members reside. The general's attention was drawn to a black man carrying a flag. He was the son of Behanzin, wearing his porter's uniform.

After the inspection the young men marched past to the tune of the "Sambre et Meuse." The general expressed himself as highly satisfied with the display. The ceremony will henceforth become traditional. It is expected that in time all the departments of France will be associated with the movement. In the afternoon another review took place, that of the societies subventioned by the municipal council. This was inspected by Colonel Derue, inspector-general of physical education in the schools of Paris. Thousands of people attended the maneuvring ground and applauded the army of tomorrow.

HOCKNEY TUESDAY.

Special to The Morning News.

London, May 11.—Just when England is beginning to pride itself on its progress of modernity, Hungerford, on the borders of Berkshire and Wiltshire, slips back into the centuries because it is Hockney Tuesday.

Unless you have lived through Hockney Tuesday you can have no conception of what it means. It needs strong nerves and a stronger constitution thoroughly to enter into the spirit of ancient times.

At eight o'clock the town crier, in grey and scarlet, with brass buttons, comes out of the town hall and blows three notes on the ancient horn given by John O'Gaunt, and that is the signal for two tutti-men to emerge from the constable's house with staves tipped with flowers—daffodils, primroses and tulips, surmounted by an orange.

HAVE THA IN CELLAR.

Special to The Morning News.

London, May 11.—M. Raymond Lauzerte, whose performance as the French hero of "Fanny's First Play," has won the admiration of London playgoers, gave a pleasant surprise yesterday to his friends in the form of a tea party in distinctively novel surroundings. M. Lauberte had invited his guests to come and have tea with him "in a cellar" at 29 Duke street, St. James.

If the wonder of the visitors was aroused before their arrival it was certainly heightened when they commenced to explore this original rendezvous. Much ingenuity had been displayed by the owner of the cellar, Miss Reid, in converting it into an extremely artistic nook. The impression on descending was one of bowers of roses with ramblers and ivy climbing over white lattice, and although some of the floors were richly carpeted, others were of the red brick farmhouse order, giving the quaintest effect. It required an effort to realise one was in a real coal cellar within a stone's throw of Piccadilly.

WOMAN JOURNALIST DIES.

Special to The Morning News.

Rome, May 11.—The celebrated woman journalist known as Mantea, whose career is tinged with romance, has just died suddenly in Rome.

Donna Gina Sobrero, for that was her real name, was the daughter of a Piedmontese colonel and a Neapolitan baroness, Colonel di Stigliano. When a girl of 15, studying at the Regina Margherita college, in Turin, she met the notorious adventurer, Wilcox, a native of Honolulu, who boasted royal lineage, and claimed to be king of the Sandwich Islands. He had come to Italy in company with the well-known Italian explorer, Celso Cesare Moreno, and had mastered the Italian language and become a society favorite. He used to be a familiar figure in the distinguished visitors' box in the chamber of deputies.

Signorina Sobrero, stirred by the pseudo prince's personality and the legends of chivalry associated with his name, ended by marrying him and accompanying him on a honeymoon voyage back to the land where she expected to reign as queen. Alas! on her arrival she learned to her cost that the youthful pretender's nearest title to the thorne was that of having a father who, as a skillful carpenter, had been employed in constructing a handsome wooden throne for the monarch.

After a long period of martyrdom at the hands of her brutal spouse, this refined, highly educated young woman succeeded in escaping to California with her infant daughter. Finally she came back to Italy, where her law suit for the annulment of her marriage created immenes interest, terminating in a favorable judgment on the score of mistaken personality.

Mantea's literary labors during her last years in Rome were of a brilliant, untiring character, especially in the case of training youth by modern methods.

NEEDLE IN HEART.

Special to The Morning News.

Folkestone, England, May 10.—Questioning the mother at a Folkestone inquest yesterday on a girl, aged one year and ten months, who had died from a supposed attack of bronchitis, the coroner said:

"Were you darning on Sunday?" The mother, Mrs. Godden, replied:

"Yes, sir."

"Did you use the needle again?"

"No. I was nursing the deceased I had the needle in my bodice and missed it afterwards."

A doctor who held a post-mortem examination produced the child's heart. A large darning needle was embedded in the center, the ends showing at either side. A verdict of hemorrhage, caused by the accidental insertion of a needle, was returned.

DUELLING AFFAIR STIRS INTEREST IN BERLIN

OFFICER SUES CALUMNIATOR FOR SLANDER INSTEAD OF SEEKING SATISFACTION.

Colleagues Ask Him to Resign and Emperor Allows Him to Do So.

By Frederick Werner.
Special to The Morning News.

Berlin, May 11.—Public opinion is much occupied here with a duelling problem, the full details of which have just come to light though they are not of very recent date. The little Wuttemberg town of Mergentheim boasts a volunteer ambulance corps, which took into its head to chance its leader, electing a Dr. Sambeth to that position. His predecessor in office, Dr. Schumm, was much annoyed by the loss of the post and wrote to Dr. Sambeth, asserting that the latter owed his success to an intrigue of a "shameless and dishonorable" character. Before the civil courts Dr. Sambeth was able to prove that his conduct in the affair had been blameless, and his libeller was fined $25.

If the parties to the squabble had been ordinary mortals, there the matter would have ended. But they were both members of the Army Medical reserve, and so subject to those military rules of "honor," which even the corrosive irony of Schopenhauer was unable to destroy. Dr. Sambeth was accordingly cited before a court of honor to show why he had not challenged Dr. Schumm to a duel, which it appeared in the coirse of the inquiry the latter was anxious to bring about. The wronged man explained that he had refrained from seeking the reparation of arms out of consideration for the "Divine command, human law, the dictates of reason and the welfare of his family." These objections, however, had no weight with his judges, who found him "guilty of an offense against the honor of his station, because he had omitted to secure adequate satisfaction, conformable with his position, for the serious insult put upon him in a quarrel with a professional colleague." It was further adjudged that he should be punished by the humiliation of "simple discharge" from his military rank.

This judgment was submitted for confirmation to the emperor, whose decision contains the following passage:

"A rejection of duelling in principle, on the grounds of religious conviction, cannot be made the subject of a judgment of a court of honor, though an army medical officer who in this respect opposes the fundamental principles of his colleagues cannot be allowed to remain any longer in his position in the service. In consideration, however, of the fact that, according to the investigations which have taken place, Dr. Sambeth gave no well-founded cause for the insult offered to him, I will as a matter of grace, allow that he at once apply for his discharge.

In other words, the doctor must leave the service, if without the stigma which "simple discharge" would have stamped upon him. Both the Catholic and the radical press treat this case as yet one more convincing demonstration of the total absurdity of duelling. Dr. Schumm, they say, utters a gross and baseless libel, and refuses either to withdraw it or to apologize; but his honor is unaffctd thereby, and he remains an officer of the medical service. On the other hand, Dr. Sambeth, because in obedience to the laws of God and of his country, he refuses to seek his affronter's blood, is driven from the service.

Duelling is one of those survivals which in Germany would perish at once with the arrival of a democratic regime. It is an affectation of a military caste and of those who ape its manners and customs. One of the standing difficulties of the war minister in the reichstag is to explain why duelling is enforced by highest organs for the execution of that same law which forbids it. In the present chamber there would be an overwhelming majority in favor of the effective prohibition of this relic of the primitive device of trial by ordeal.

Somewhat analgous to the case of Dr. Sambeth is that of Professor Czerny, a great authority on cancer, and one of the bost eminent doctors in Germany, who was lately compelled to retire from the Army Medical reserve because he had given expression to pronounced radical views in connection with the recent general election.

Superstitious people will be convinced that if the Schutt airship had not broken its hiberation on the 13th of last month and aggravated its offense against the cosmic laws of number by making its first ascent of the year with thirteen persons in its cars, it would have escaped the exciting and perilous adventures which befel it the other day. The huge aerial craft, which is 450 feet in length, left its hangar at the Lenz engineering works at Rheinau, to the south of Manheim, shortly before noon and for some time maneuvered successfully at an altitude of about a thousand feet. Half an hour later, as it was returning from the eastward to its home, the spectators who were watching its evolutions were horrified to see it descend rapidly to earth with a deep slant.

Luckily it fell on a meadow, but the force of the impact was so great that several persons in the front car were thrown out. Professor Schutte of Danzig, designer of the airship, turned a somersault as he described an extensive curve through space, but escaped with nothing more than a severe shaking. One of the engineers was, however, seriously injured and was carrid to a hospital in an unconscious condition.

Lightened of half its human load and of the water ballast, which had been hastily dropped from the rear car, the airship sped up to a height of three or four thousand feet, and, as the only accessible motor now refused to work, it was swept across the Rhine before the wind. Those still on board hastened to put an end to their predicament by opening the gas valves. The vessel again descended with such precipitancy that, according to one account, all the occupants were thrown out by the collision of the rear car with the ground. The airship got entangled with the branches of some trees, and as the wind at this moment benevolently dropped, the soldiers, who in this country are readily place at the disposal of enterprising aeronauts who may indirectly serve military ends—and the workmen from the Lanz factory had no difficulty in towing it back to its shed.

Professor Schutte is not at all disconcerted by his unpleasant experience, and declares that his craft, which sustained no very serious damage, will be in an airworthy condition again in a day or two.

Various explanations for the accident are put forward. According to one of these the sudden descent of the airship was due to the cooling of the gas by the shadow of a heavy cloud. Another story ascribes the misadventure to an error of steering. Professor Schutte himself states that his vessel was forced downwards by a squall which struck it sideways.

Many people will seek no further than the malign influences of numerical magic. It is believed that if the car had been rigidly attached in the Zeppelin manner to a rigid framework, instead of being loosely hung to it by ropes, all its occupants would have been killed.

IMMIGRATION WITHOUT RESTRAINT MENACE TO LABOR

Special to The Morning News.

New York, May 11.—Vice President John Mitchell of the American Federation of Labor, has issued an official statement to the effect that unrestrained immigration has the effect of making labor laws a dead letter. "From the newly arrived immigrants," he said, "the managers of affairs, the leaders in commercial life, the politicians and lawmakers, the editorial fraternity, the land owners, all are in no immediate danger of competition; hence these classes but remotely feel the effects of immigration, other than such as are apparently beneficial to themselves through the cheapness of labor. But the sole avenue of entrance to America for perhaps 99 per cent of the immigrants being through the unskilled labor market, this to wage earners is the fact of all facts relative to immigration."

DOZEN ONE-EYED MEN DINE.

Special to The Morning News.

Chicago, May 11.—Twelve men with twelve good eyes and twelve glass eyes attended a dinner served by Harley D. Hartley, one of their number, at a Muncie hotel.

Hartley was particular that every man present wear a glass eye. When dinner was over the twelve glass eyes were removed, wrapped in a neat package and sent to the proprietor of the hotel, with the request that he inspect and return them. He opened the package in the presence of the telephone girl and she fainted.

HOME RULE BILL TO FIND LORDS ITS FOES

BELIEVED TORIES WILL RESORT TO ANYTHING TO DEFEAT MEASURE THEY HATE.

Will Be Dangerous Game—Liberals Among Peers Are Few, But Able.

By Austin F. Maguire.
Special to The Morning News.

Dublin, May 11.—The expedition with which the government is sending the home rule bill through the house of commons is gratifying proof that the ministry means business and that stage after stage of the bill's progress must be attained with all the celerity it is possible to have under the rules of parliamentary procedure.

Premier Asquith is determined to have the bill sent up to the house of lords without loss of time so that the butchery or rejection may be over with as quickly as the house of lords can get down to work.

It is a foregone conclusion that the bill will be in the hands of its enemies the moment it reaches the chamber of the peers. The generalship of the liberal leaders there will lie in their forcing prompt action on the measure and preventing any shelving of the bill for the mere purpose of gaining time.

The liberals are hopelessly weak in point of numbers in the house of lords, but in their small group they have many strong men, for instance, Lord Moseley and Lord Haldane, and they will keep things moving unless the tory majority resorts to a brazen policy of sheer obstruction.

This will be a dangerous game for all to play. But then it should be borne in mind that British toryism is in desperate straits right now.

When the bill comes back from the lords, the prime minister will allow no grass to grow in the popular house. Without delay, the measure will be re-introduced, will be passed again by the elective house and then again be sent up to th lords.

That will be the final sacrifice. With their second rejection the lords will exhaust their rights of obstruction. Thereafter the home rule bill will be dealt with only by the house of commons and the king.

The most interesting features of the measure are to be found in its monetary sections. For instance, in the outline of financial provisions it is shown that the total Irish revenue for the current fiscal year is $54,195,000. The expenditure is estimated at $61,770,000, leaving a deficiet of $7,575,000.

This deficit will, of course, be cut down wonderfully by the Irish parliament. The civil service list of Ireland is one shameless extravagance. Almost the entire deficit can be wiped out by an Irish secretary of the treasury or a chancellor of the exchequer, who knows the country who can tell where needful expenditure ends and where extravaganve begins.

In fact, government experts have already figured that Irish revenue in the very first budget presented to the Irish parliament will figure a total of $37,810,000, while the expenditure will stand at $35,310,000, leaving a surplus of $2,500,000.

As time goes on these figures will undergo radical change. And before twenty years are at an end, after the passage of home rule, Ireland's resources will have experienced a grat process of strengthening and increase.

It is estimated that old-age pensions, which now stand at $13,320,000 per annum, shall show a decrease within twenty years of fully one million dollars.

And, of course, there is a time limit to the burden of land purchase. Some sixty years from now, at the farethest, that will be all wiped out. And then Ireland's resources—save for the contribution to the imperial fund—will turn inwards towards herself.

Ireland's commerce is capable of enormous development. Once capital takes courage and begins to flow freely through the arteries of her commercial system—and this will be immediately after home rule is established—the figures of the national exchequer will mount upwards by leaps and bounds.

No country in Europe has finer rivers or harbors, so that all the natural requirements for commercial development are easily within her grasp.

Leaving out of calculation any increase of her manufacturerers and looking only to her natural resources, it is confidently predicted that if things go right politically and the country is given a chance to settle down, the value of the dairy produce trade and of the deep sea fisheries will be doubled within ten years.

POPULIST LEADER IS DEAD.

Special to The Morning News.

Guthrie, Ok., May 11.—George H. Coulson, one of the fathers of the Populist party in Kansas, died today at Cherokee, where he had lived since making the run when the Cherokee strip was opened in 1893.

A native of Columbian county, O., he graduated from the Hiram Institute while James A. Garfield was its head. He served two terms in the Kansas legislature on the Populist wave, and was one of the bitterest anti-John J. Ingalls men. He participated in the election of United States Senators Martin and Pfeffer. He was a member of the legislative committee also that tried and convicted District Judge Theodore Botkin on various charges. Coulson served in the Oklahoma territorial legislature as a Populist.

NEARLY HALF MILLION FOWLS RAISED ON FARMS

VALUE OF POULTRY PRODUCED IN 1909 REACHES VERY HIGH FIGURE.

Special to The Morning News.

Washington, May 11.—A preliminary statement of the general results of the thirteenth census relative to the number of farms reporting the raising of poultry and production of eggs, together with the number of fowls and dozens of eggs produced, and the value thereof, in 1909, was issued today by Director E. Dana Burand, of the bureau of the census, department of Commerce and Labor. It was prepared under the direction of Le Grand Powers, chief statistician, and John Lee Coulter, expert special agent for agriculture.

Further analysis of the returns may result in slight modification of the totals here presented before final publication, but it is not expected that they will affect materially the figures given herein. A statement showing the number and value of fowls on farms at the time the census was taken (April 15, 1910) has already been issued. Special attention is called to the fact that the present summary relates only to poultry and eggs produced on farms, as no enumeration was provided by law for cities, towns or villages.

Increase in Poultry Value.

The total number of farms reporting fowls raised in 1909 was 5,655,754, or 88.9 per cent of all farms in the United States; and the number of such fowls was 488,468,354, or an average of 86.4 fowls per farm. No report was published in 1900, showing the number of farms reporting or the number of fowls raised in 1899, but the total value was given as $136,830,152, as against a value in 1909 of $202,506,272. It will thus be seen that the value of poultry produced in one year shows an increase during the decade of over $65,500,000, or 48.0 per cent.

The last census shows that in 1909 there were produced in the United States 1,591,311,371 dozen eggs, valued at $306,688,960. The production in 1899 was 1,293,662,433 dozen eggs, and the value, $144,240,451. While the production of eggs during the ten years increased but 23.0 per cent, the value more than doubled, the exact amount of gain being $162,448,419, or 112.6 per cent.

Distribution By Divisions.

Of the nine main geographic divisions into which the census divides the country, the east and west north central divisions combined reported over 46.3 per cent of all poultry, and 52.7 per cent of the eggs produced in 1909. The latter division ranks first, with a total of 123,853,687 fowls raised, having a value of $52,337,180. The eggs produced in this division amounted to 446,336,192 dozen, valued at $77,493,327. The average value per fowl was 42 cents, and the average value per dozen of eggs was 17 cents.

The east north central division raised 102,496,192 fowls in 1909, valued at $47,972,887. The average value per fowl was 47 cents. During the same year 392,304,118 dozen eggs were produced, with o total value of $75,237,900, or an average value per dozen of 19 cents.

The three southern divisions, comprising the South Atlantic, and the east and the west central, together reported over 39 per cent of all poultry raised in 1909.

Of these the South Atlantic produced the greatest number, 70,792,154, having a total value of $24,413,963, or an average of 35 cents per fowl. In the same year there were produced in this division 136,673,767 dozen eggs, with a total value of $26,545,679, or an average of 20 cents per dozen.

The west south central division is fifth in rank in the production of poultry and third in that of eggs, but the Middle Atlantic division reports a higher total value of eggs than any of the southern divisions. In the former the number of fowls raised was 59,066,127, valued at $17,681,375. The eggs produced amounted to 165,557,865 dozen, and the value to $26,395,765. The average value per fowl was 30 cents, and of eggs 16 cents per dozen.

The poultry production in the Middle Atlantic division, 36,313,031 fowls, was valued at $21,527,077, or an average of 59 cents per fowl; and the 161,921,598 dozen eggs produced were valued a t$37,507,552, or an average of 23 cents per dozen.

Seven states in the country raised over 20,000,000 fowls in 1909, namely: Illinois, Missouri, Iowa, Texas, Kansas, Ohio and Indiana; their combined production comprising over 39 per cent of the poultry produced in the United States. Only four states, however, reported a production of over 100,000,000 dozen eggs: Missouri, Iowa, Ohio and Illinois; their combined product representing over 26 per cent of the total.

Illinois raised 32,352,888 fowls in 1909, with a total value of $15,404,928; an average of 48 cents per fowl. The production of eggs amounted to 100,119,418 dozen, valued at $18,490,454, an average of 19 cents per dozen.

The production of poultry in Missouri amounted to 31,913,210 fowls, valued at $14,572,585, or an average of 46 cents per fowl. This state reported a production of 111,416,695 dozen eggs, having a total value of $19,345,602, or an average value of 17 cents per dozen.

Iowa with a production of 29,990,147 fowls, ranks third among the states. The total value of its poultry was $13,914,985, or an average of 46 cents per fowl. A total of 109,760,487 dozen eggs were produced in 1909, valued at $19,235,800, or an average of 18 cents per dozen.

The 23,433,005 fowls raised in Ohio were valued at $10,997,633; the average value per fowl amounting to 47 cents. This state produced 100,889,599 dozen eggs, having a total value of $19,748,658, or an average value of 20 cents per dozen.

DALLAS TO HAVE BIG WELCOME FOR AD MEN

ENTERTAINMENT COMMITTEE IS MAKING ELABORATE PREPARATIONS FOR VISITORS.

Plans Giving Publicity Boys Real Exhibit of Texas Hospitality.

Special to The Morning News.

Dallas, Tex., May 11.—Dallas, the convention city, is ready for the advance guard of ad men who will arrive in the Texas metropolis one week from tonight, to attend the eighth annual convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of America. The entertainment committee has made elaborate preparations for many visitors that will attend the convention. The Dallas News al fresco luncheon has been completely arranged; the automobile parade of one thousand autos, posing for a moving picture to be taken by Pathe Freres, is assured. The Times-Herald luncheon will be ready for the guests at noon Tuesday. The "Round-up" for visiting newspaper men has been prepared by the Dallas Press club and will be sort of a gridiron dinner as well as a round-up. The cattalo barbecue, to be tendered by Frank P. Holland of Farm & Ranch and Holland's Magazine, is ready for the guests.

The hotel committee has arranged for taking care of more than three thousand of the advertising men and their wives. Every detail has been carefully looked after, so that no inconveniences will be experienced by any of the visitors.

The bulletin board committee has so arranged its work as to avoid all verbal announcements and eliminate those usual convention interruptions. Everything to be made public, such as changes, next place of meeting, telegrams, parties seeking others, etc., will be flashed on the bulletin boards in full view of all. No verbal announcements will be made either in the convention hall or at headquarters in the Oriental hotel.

The committee in charge of the bureau of information are working hard to master every detail of the convention, so that any question asked can be answered quickly, without reference to any guide of any kind.

The baggage question will be taken care of in a most intelligent manner by the Dallas Transfer company, who will have representatives meet trains fifty to one hundred miles from Dallas, check the baggage and take care of hand grips. Each of these runners will have a list of delegations coming and where their reservations have been made, so that no trouble will be experienced.

Every member of the Dallas Advertising league will wear a white hat, bearing the words, "Dallas Advertising League." In addition to this distinction, all citizens will wear the official convention flower, a red carnation, during the convention. Every citizen of Dallas will also be a member of the courtesy committee and will render every assistance possible to visitors during the convention.

It is safe to say that no convention ever held in the entire South has been more carefully prepared for than this great gathering of Ad men, and from the time the delegations arrive and are received by Colonel Holland's reception committee, until they depart, nine days later for their homes, nothing will be left undone to make their stay in Texas one to be remembered, not only as a convention trip, but for the hospitality which only Texas can tender to visitors.

PAIR CUFF BUTTONS, 511 YEARS OLD, LOST

Links Handed Down Through 17 Generations Dropped From Pocket By Owner.

Special to The Morning News.

Chicago, May 11.—A pair of link cuff buttons, 511 years old and for 17 generations handed down from father to son, have been lost here by their owner, Charles H. Hill, a hotel detective.

The buttons were made in Scotland by one of the first of the Hill family. They were brought to the United States before the revolutionary war. At the time the links were made the manufacturer wrote on a piece of parchment that they should descend to the youngest son of his descendants. On this parchment, now so old that it cannot be deciphered, was recorded the history of the buttons.

Mr. Hill attended a nickel show and told the police he believed that he had accidentally pulled the buttons from his pocket with his purse. He came to Chicago from Kentucky.

Man Sleeping With Telephone Sends Weird Noises Over Wire and Alarms Operators.

By The Associated Press.

Dallas, May 11.—Operators at the Southwestern telephone exchange sent in a hurry call to police headquarters Sunday night which maue the night force sit up and take notice.

"There is someone being murdered in the 500 block on South Akaru street," Charles Forsker, sergeant, was informed. "The telephone receiver is down and the man is making funny noises over the phone. We think his throat has been cut and he is trying to call for help."

Officer Tom Peak was sent out to the address at top speed. The telephone was in a bed room on the second floor. Officer Peak discovered a young man fast asleep with a telephone lying beside him on the pillow. He was snoring into the transmitte.

FROM $3.00 WEEKLY TO THE PRESIDENCY

FORMER PRESIDENT OF KATY RAILROAD HAD INTERESTING CAREER.

Began Railway Service as Messenger Boy, and Tells How He Climbed the Ladder.

Special to The Morning News.

St. Louis, May 8.—The recent voluntary retirement of Andrew A. Allen from the presidency of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas railroad means the temporary retirement from active life of one of the most picturesque self-made men in St. Louis.

The word temporary is used advisedly. After 19 years of continuous service with the "Katy," Mr. Allen decided he was entitled to rest. But any of his personal acquaintances is willing to make a book, with attractive odds on the proposition, that energetic, sturdy, aggressive "Andy Allen," as they love to call him, will not stay quit for any great while.

A reporter trapped Allen at the Planters hotel before his departure for the north for a rest, and got him to talk a little about himself. Trapped is another word used advisedly. Allen is willing to talk one's head off on any subject connected with railroading, from drawbars to first mortgage bonds, but when he is asked to talk about Andrew A. Allen, he is as shy as a debutante.

Began As Messenger At $3 Week.

At that, however, he admitted he felt he was entitled to a rest, blushed, said he was thinking of a trip to Europe, blushed again and said he didn't know what he would do when he came back, looked embarrassed and confessed he did get his start as a messenger boy at $3 per, but hastened to add that what he had done any person of average intelligence could do if he had the proper amount of ambition and grit.

Then, as he realized he was talking about himself, he looked as sheepish as a schoolboy caught with the watermelon plug in his fingers, felt of his collar, as if it was too tight, and began with great feeling and expressiveness to wonder if it was going to rain.

With the use of diplomacy he was induced to say that he got his start at railroading by accident. He was in the common school of Monmouth, Ill., his birthplace, when one day he decided it was time to get a job.

Fortunately for the future of railroading, young Allen heard that the telegraph operator at the Burlington depot needed a boy to run errands. He asked for the place and got it.

He hadn't been there very long before he began to fiddle with the telegraph instruments. The operator taught him the Morse code, and soon Allen was sending jerky routine messages over the wire. He was 14 years old then. Once, when the operator was promoted, or something similar happened, Allen took his key and the regular telegrapher was not missed. In a little while Allen was the town's best ticket seller and operator.

Somebody on the Toledo, Peoria & Western heard of him and when a vacancy happened in the road's staff at Burlington, Ia., Allen was sent for. He handled the work so well that the Burlington system got sorry it let him go and hired him back again, sending him to Peoria as assistant train dispatcher, later making him train dispatcher.

Promotions Frequent Then.

Promotions then ran all over each other trying to catch him. He went to Chicago as ticket agent for the Wabash at better pay. The Burlington once more repented and sent for him, making him trainmaster at Peoria. The Wisconsin Central then grabbed him, making him assistant superintendent, then division superintendent, and finally assistant general manager.

In 1883 he became general manager of the Chicago & Northern Pacific and the Chicago, Calumet & Terminal company lines in Chicago. He was sent to Washington state and put in charge of the construction of the Everett & Monte Cristo road, from Puget Sound to the Cascade mountains.

His success in this undertaking gave him high national standing among railroad men. In 1893 he accepted the office of general superintendent of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas system. He was promoted to the office of general manager, and in 1898 was made vice president and general manager. Three years ago he was chosen president.

When he went to the "Katy" it had but fourteen hundred miles of track. Today it has four thousand miles and is in good condition. His associates on the road say much of this advancement has been due to the indefatigable efforts of Allen, who had worked 19 years for the road without a vacation worth mentioning.

Pride An Aid to His Success.

"I suppose pride helped me to whatever success I achieved," Allen once replied to a friend's inquiry. "I started at the bottom, but made up my mind that I was going to the top. At this stage of my life, as I look back over my career, I wonder if I would go through it again if I knew in advance all the hard work and hardships to be undergone, but I suppose the hope and confidence of youth would lead me to fight the battle, if my life was to be lived over.

"If a boy has fair intelligence and sufficient grit and will power, and will stick to his work, he is pretty certain to succeed in life, provided he does not enter a field totally unsuited to his natural talents."

Not only were Mr. Allen's fellow officials and employes most loyal to him, but patrons of the road held him in highest esteem, and when his determination to retire became known, resolutions of regret were passed by communities in various parts of the M., K. & T. system.

Allen is 54 years old. He stands six feet in his socks, but sturdy shoulders and a certain ruggedness of feature rob him of the appearance of being tall.

TWO DREAM OF GOLD; SAME SPOT

One Beat Other to Place—Defeated One Offers $5000 For An Interest.

Special to The Morning News.

Denver, May 11.—For a man to dream the location of a mine is not an unusual occurrence, but for two men to dream the same dream in every detail, even to the exact location of the mine, has been unheard of. Yet W. C. Jones, stopping at the Elk hotel is in the midst of such an experience, and because of his belief in dreams has refused $5000 for a half interest in a mine which he has started, but which has not struck pay dirt.

The following is the story of W. C. Jones, or "Grouse Creek" Jones, as he is known at his home, Steamboat Springs, tells of his experience with dreams. Mr. Jones is a well-to-do mining man, and owns interests in several paying mines in the vicinity of Steamboat Springs.

"Some months ago I dreamed that there was a vein of gold at a certain location near the town of Steamboat, on the side of the mountain above a place where a number of paying placer mines were being operated. I started the mine in my dream, and within forty feet of the entrance my men struck a strata of white rock 22 feet in thickness. I continued pushing into the mountain side, and when I had progressed 125 feet I struck a vein of gold richer than ever before seen in this country. The mine made me many times a millionaire before it exhausted.

"Well, I finally started my mine on the exact spot I had dreamed that I would find the gold. Now it is about 100 feet in depth. Forty feet within the entrance of the mine my men struck a strata of white rock, as the dream had foretold. I measured the starta and it came to exactly 22 feet. This made me more determined to push it until I had gone to the full depth at which my dream foretold I would discover the vein.

"About this time Jim Norvell of Routt county, made me an offer of $5000 for a half interest in the mine. I refused the offer, for I believed that my dream would come true. He made repeated offers for a half interest, until I finally asked him why he was so anxious to invest in my hole in the ground. He replied that he had had a dream. The dream as he told it to me was a duplicate in every detail of the one I myself had dreamed. I had never told a soul of my dream, so he could not have heard of it.

"I am confident that when I have progressed the whole 125 feet I will find enough gold to make me millions."

Mr. Jones was in Denver to arrange for supplies for his miners, as he is working double shifts in his anxiety to reach the goal of his dreams. So far the ore taken from the mine assays $40 a ton.

BAYLOR REVIVAL MEETINGS CONTINUE

DR. SCARBOROUGH TO PREACH TO STUDENTS TODAY AND PERHAPS MONDAY.

So high is the interest in the revival meeting that has been on at the university for the last week that Dr. Scarborough, who had originally intended to close the meeting Friday night, will remain over through Sunday and maybe until Monday night. There have been many conversions, numerous reclamations and a general strengthening of the religious life of the university.

Beginning under probably more apparent disadvantages than almost any other meeting in recent years, the revival has proven one of the most successful recently held there. There has been no sensational preaching. Everything has moved along quietly, nevertheless forcibly, and the students have given large attention to the meetings, without it interfering with their class work.

Dr. H. L. Hargrove, who for the last two weeks has been quite ill, is now recovering, and with no relapses he will probably be able to conduct the final examinations which will begin in three weeks.

Preparations are progressing for the annual banquet of the Alumni association, which will be held at the Huaco club the evening of June 5. At this time the completion of the endowment fund of the university will be celebrated and the affair will assume an historical interest to a certain extent.

For the undergraduates social interest for the latter part of the session centers in the annual Press club banquet, which will be held at the Huaco club next Thursday evening.

Prof. E. A. Schafer, for several years past professor of piano at Baylor, has tendered his resignation to become the dean of the music faculty of Polytechnic college, Fort Worth. He will be succeeded next year by Prof. Evans, who has been spending quite a while in Germany, doing advanced work, and who will return in time for the opening of school in September.

Interest in musical circles the coming week will be centered in the recital that will be given in Carroll chapel Tuesday night, May 14, by Getty Sellars, solo organist of the Queen's Hall, London, and reputed to be one of the best musicians in England. He is now on his first tour of Texas or this section of the country, and is being well received wherever he appears. He has the high commendation of musical critics in this and foreign countries, and music lovers everywhere have shown their appreciation of his skill.

It is announced that both popular and classical music have been interwoven into the program that he will present here.

BERNHARDT'S SUPREME EFFORT

The crowning glory of motion photography was the securing of Mme. Sarah Bernhardt to pose before the motion picture camera. It took many months to induce the great actress to invade this branch of theatrical entertainment. Money alone is not responsible for it, although $30,000 was the amount she received for her performance. A number of sentimental reasons, as well, combined to bring forth an affirmative decision.

The appearance of Madame Bernhardt in moving pictures places the photo-play on an equality with the living stage of stars, so that henceforth motion picture productions will compete with any dramatic attraction.

The motion pictures of Madame Bernhardt in her greatest emotional role of "Camille" will be seen here for two days, beginning Monday, at the Huaco theater.

BLACK DOGS ARE IDOLIZED BY MEXICANS

Mountain Region of Oaxaca Swarming With Canines Venerated By Natives.

In no other part of the world today are as many black dogs to be found as in the rugged mountain region of Oaxaca, Mexico. Numbering into the thousands, they virtually swarm over the country asonce did the now extinct buffalo the wide plains of the west.

Pampered and petted, in fact as much idolized as the bronze Buddha of China, these dogs are held sacred by the Mazatec Indians, who have long inhabited that section. From time immemorial they have venerated the canine and with him the snake, panther, alligator and the eagle. Though principles of Christianity have long since been instilled in the hearts of these redskins, the rites of their forefathers still hold strongest sway.

The ancient belief of the Mazatec is that his soul after death went to the "kingdom of animals." There for a long time it wandered about, being assisted or attacked by thousands of animals according as the dead person had treated them in life. At one point in the journey into this strange land the soul of the Mazatec is assisted by a black dog across an almost impassible stream. Hhe Mazatec believes that his soul is then incarnated in an animal of some kind —a black dog, a snake an an alligator.—Exchange.

MAN WHO OPENED CIVIL WAR DEAD

Special to The Morning News.

Dalton, Ga., May 11.—Daniel Carey, who claimed the distinction of having fired the first shot in the civil war, died here early today. He based his assertion on the fusillade aimed at the ship Star off the west of Morris island, prior to the bombardment of Fort Sumter.

Carey was a member of the Charleston cadets, who offered their services to the state after South Carolina seceded.

GIRL OF 10 SCORES AS A GROWER OF COTTON

Raises 1590 Pounds to the Acre and Gets Diploma Signed by the Governor.

Special to The Morning News.

Oklahoma City, Okla., May 11.—Among the 7041 boys and girls, demonstration club members, who raised cotton last year under the direction of the government co-operative demonstration department, one of the best reports was made by a 10-year-old girl. Her name is Jewell Wilkerson of Marshall county.

Little Miss Wilkerson grew an average yield to the acre of 1590 pounds, and she now has safely tucked away among her possessions a handsomely designed diploma for intelligence and skill, signed by Governor Cruce.

Five young men in the state received such diplomas, the other four being boys. These young farmers made an average yield of more than 2050 pounds to the acre. Their names, addresses and individual amounts given are: Charles Brandon, McIntosh county, 2869 pounds; W. H. Howard, Stephens county, 2287 pounds; Marion Crowell, Bryan county, 1760 pounds; Dennis Watson, Lincoln county, 1745 pounds.

The methods these young people used to harvest such splendid yields are those generally followed by the federal co-operative workers, and mean, in brief, the substitution of thorough intensive cultivation on a small acreage for the inefficient, slipshod cultivation of larger tracts.

DR. BLUE, NEW HEAD OF THE MARINE HOSPITAL SERVICE.

Has Fought Yellow Fever and Bubonic Plague—His Distinguished Career.

Dr. Rupert Blue, a surgeon of the Marine hospital and public health service, has been appointed surgeon general of that service, succeeding the late Dr. Walter Wyman, who died several weeks ago. Dr. Blue was formerly on duty at Honolulu investigating the yellow fever situation.

President Taft has also amended the regulations governing the service to limit the term of the surgeon general to four years. Formerly the surgeon general had an unlimited tenure of office. Mr. Taft thought it more advisable to limit the term to four years, so as to place the service upon the same basis in this respect as the other departmental bureaus.

Dr. Blue was born in Scotland county, N. C., on May 30, 1867. He was brought as a boy to Marion, S. C., where his home now is. He was graduated with the class of 1892 from the University of Maryland, at Baltimore. Entering the marine hospital service in 1892, he has passed through all the grades and has had the rank of surgeon since 1909. His most recent duty was in Honolulu investigating the yellow fever mosquito with a view to its extermination. He is now in Washington on leave of absence.

He was on special duty at Genoa and Naples in 1899 and 1900 in co-operation with the officers of the immigration service. In 1905 he was on duty at New Orleans in connection with the yellow fever epidemic there.

Dr. Blue's most important service in recent years was his work in charge of the government's crusade against the bubonic plague on the Pacific coast in 1907 and 1908.

He is a fellow of the Royal Society of Tropical Medicine of England. He has represented the United States government at several important medical conferences, among them the international congress of physicians and medicine held at Buenos Ayres last summer. He afterward traveled through Chile, Peru and other South American countries investigating plague conditions. He was the first to discover that ground squirrels were carriers of plague, and before going to Honolulu he was engaged in the extermination of infected ground squirrels in California.

Dr. Blue is a brother of Commander Victor Blue of the navy, who is now on duty with the general board.

CELEBRATION AT KEY WEST.

Foreign Nations Will Join In Marking Completion of Railroad.

Many of the foreign embassies and legations in Washington will send representatives to the special international celebration at Key West, Fla., on Jan. 22, to mark the completion of the Florida East Coast Railway company's line connecting the mainland of the United States with the island city of Key West.

President Taft, in behalf of the city of Key West, invited all foreign nations to send representatives and naval vessels to participate in the celebration. Formal acceptances have been received from Italy, Mexico, Portugal, Costa Rica, the Dominican republic, Ecuador, Guatemala, Salvador and Uruguay. Each of these nations will be represented by official delegates, selected in most instances from the embassies and legations.

Portugal is the only foreign country to be represented by a vessel of its navy. The Portuguese cruiser Aramda is now at Key West. The United States navy will be represented by the fifth division of the Atlantic fleet, consisting of the armored cruisers Washington and North Carolina, and the scout cruisers Salem and Birmingham, which will reach Key West about Jan. 21, to remain there a week.

DIRECTOR OF POSTAL SAVINGS

Theodore L. Weed Appointed to New Office by Postmaster General.

Theodore L. Weed, chief clerk of the postoffice department, who is Postmaster General Hitchcock's principal executive assistant in the management of the department, has been appointed director of the postal savings system at $5,000 a year. He will assume his duties immediately.

Because of the extraordinary development of the postal savings system, which now is receiving deposits aggregating a million dollars a week, Mr. Hitchcock, who thus far has directed the system personally, found it necessary to organize a special bureau to take up the work. As an initial step he made Mr. Weed director. The latter, who was appointed to the government service from Connecticut in 1898, has been Mr. Hitchcock's chief aid in extending the postal bank operations.

CHURCH 225 YEARS OLD.

Structure Built In the Time of Lord Baltimore Is Destroyed.

The St. Francis Xavier Roman Catholic church at Warwick, Md., near the Delaware state line, a historic landmark of the Maryland-Delaware peninsula, was destroyed by fire recently. It was built 225 years ago in the time of Lord Baltimore.

The church was of brick, two stories in height. Some of the altar vestments and chalices were saved.

New Zealand's Railways.

New Zealand now has over 2,700 miles of railway. Electrification of certain sections is now under contemplation.

BOY, TAGGGED, ON TRIP TO DENVER

Special to The Morning News.

York, Pa., May 11.—Paul Austin, 8 years old, came alone all the way from Denver, Colo., to Mummasburg, Adams county, arriving yesterday. The little fellow lives at Carrylton, near Denver. A tag was placed upon him and he was sent on through tagged like a package.

The little fellow was very much fatigued with the long ride, but expressed no fear. He will stay here some time before returning to his mother.

ARAMINTA BRANSON SEES MANY INTERESTING SIGHTS IN BERLIN AND VISITS BINGEN-ON-THE-RHINE.

Berlin, Aug. 13, 1911.—As I glance from my window I see two bronze fountains casting their irridescent spray on either side of a life size monument of Schiller. For his play, "The Robbers," he had abundant material, as the ruins of robber castles dot the empire. His remains repose in the grand ducal vault beside those of Goethe. A Schiller fund has been created in Germany and is devoted to the assistance of needy authors.

Berlin has more than 3,000,000 inhabitants, and seems so much more prosperous than most other cities we have visited. Indeed, the farther north we get the better the condition of the poorer classes. One trifle had puzzled me until I learned its significance—that of crossed keys on outside gates and doors. My curiosity at last solved the matter. A society for the night protection of premises exists and each member pays $3 to a watchman.

Our first visit in Berlin was to the Column of Victory (ascended for the view), the reichstadt (parliament) and a bird's eye range of the Thiergarten. The latter is a large park with numerous lakes and extensive woods. It contains both a zoological and botanical garden. It has an avenue of marble statuary and marble seats. Near this is the Emperor William memorial church. Street cars run through this magnificent grove out to Charlottenburg, the royal mausoleum.

In this park is a bronze monument of St. Hubert and the deer. The head of the deer has a brilliant cross hovering between its antlers, as he stands to receive the fatal shot. The dog cowers by St. Hubert's side, as if he, too, interprets the omen.

The Unter den Linden is the finest street in Europe. The stately portal of the Brandenburg gate, surmounted by its colossal chariot of Victory at one end, while a mile distant at the other is the palace bridge with its eight groups of statuary. There are four bronze horses also over this gate, which Napoleon I. had captured from Germany and which Bismarck, after Prussia had conquered France under Napoleon III., demanded, with an enormous indemnity, the return.

The four bronze horses over the entrance to St. Mark's in Venice figured conspicuously too in Napoleon I.'s campaign.

I am called to supper. Entre nous, it does seem to me that the hens are especially busy in Europe. We have eggs twice a day and sometimes three.

Sunday.

I think most of the party has gone to church, but tue sermon being in German would hardly benefit me. The music will be good. The best dressed and most attractive children I have seen in Europe are in Berlin.

We go out this afternoon to Charlottenburg. The members who attended services this morning stumbled into the military church where only soldiers are supposed to worship. They enjoyed the serviceas, however, and heard fine voices from an invisible choir.

Have just had 6 o'clock dinner, after a glorious drive over the city and out to Charlottenburg, a suburb of Berlin where one of the royal palaces is located and where the royal mausoleum is on the palace grounds.

We passed the crown princes home, where he resides with his wife and three children. A younger brother with his family lives within a few blocks of him. Both residences are of severely plain architecture but cover much ground. Potsdam is the kaiser's home, which we visit on Tuesday. He has six sons, nearly all of whom have families. The crown prince soon visits America.

Charlottenburg palace is not open to visitors, but hundreds visit the grounds daily, which are extensive, with fountains, crangerie, statuary and magnificent walks. The mausoleum has four carrora recumbent monuments of Frederick William I. and his wife, William II. and his spouse, with inscribed tablets beneath on the floor. The window panes are of blue glass, casting a bealtiful soft blue light over the entire interior, creating a magic effect.

We returned by way of the Thiergarten, which has 3000 acres. Passed Queen Elizabeth's rose garden, with her marble statue in the center.

An artist took a snapshot of our observation car and party and in an hour the pictures were ready for distribution. The party was delighted to get them, but I couldn't recognize anybody, therefore declined to purchase.

Monday.

Have just gone through one of the royal palaces up a tilting yard, an ascent over a paved entrance without steps. At one entrance there are two large bronze groups of four horses each; at another St. George and the dragon. So, you, see, the palace is well guarded, including a supplementary force of uniformed soldiers. The king of beasts is in evidence everywhere we go. One of the state antechambers contains portraits of Frederick the Great,, his queen and family; another portraits of the Great Elector and family, Frederick William as crown prince and Peter the Great and Catherine II. of Russia. Another room has all the kings down to Emperor Frederick. Queen Louise of Prussia is, of course, prominent in the royal family, with her scarf around her head and neck, which she always wore to conceal a scar.

The state rooms are gorgeously decorated. The ball room has a canopy or throne seat for the emperor, opening into a tapestry colonade, just without, for promenaders. In the old throne room the gorgeous rococo decoration reaches its climax. The trumpeters' gallery is above. The sideboard contains the finest collection of plate in the entire royal collection.

One room is called the red eagle, another the black eagle, which two are the royal orders. The latter is the highest, to which J. Pierpont Morgan aspired. But being denied admittance, he paid $20,000 to become a member of the Red Eagles. The crests of the knights who are members form the frieze and some of the panels. The covering on the walls is red, with embroidered red eagles on the one and black eagles on the other. These minor details are interesting.

The palace chapel has an altar of four columns of yellow Egyptian marble, backed by a richly carved gilded cross set with precious stones. There are 760 apartmnts in the palace. Dear, me; how busy the empress must keep! The Emperor William wedded Queen Victoria's daughter in this chapel. We were required to keep our feet in flannel sandals to walk over the floors of the palace.

We visited next the monument of William III. It is a colossal equestrian figure in a field cloak, holding a baton of command in his right hand and his horse led by a graceful figure of Peace. On each corner of the square base are Victories—on two sides are figures of War. Projecting from the corners are four lions amid war trophies and banners. A colonnade of ionic columns forms a large peristyle outside the figures, surmounted with groups of the kingdoms of Prussiaa, Bavaria, Saxony and Wertemburg. Four groups of the back represent commerce, navigation, art and science. Each of the corner pavilions bears a bronze Quadriga. This is one of the grandest monuments in the world. That of Emmanuel in Rome is by far the most beautiful, but embraces nothing like the history of that of William III. Prince Albert's of England is expressive of art, science and history and the tribute of a loving nation, but it does not compare with this.

We went through the reichstag, and am sorry to say understood nothing our good guide said, as it was all in German. There were two small doors on opposite sides of the dais through which the "nays" and "ayes" passed when voting.

The Schloss-Brucke, a palace bridge, is adorned with eight groups of statuary, life size, illustrative of the life of a warrior. Victory teaches the boy history, Athena instructs him in weapons and presents the combatants with arms. Victory crowns the conqueror and raises the wounded warrior. Athena protects and aids a combatant, incites to a new contest. Iris conducts the victorious fallen to Olympus. My observations were very hurriedly taken, but I think are correct.

The state church is of modern erection. It has several sarcophigi in one corridor, the bodies being underneath in the vault, in the nave of the church, which are very grand and imposing, all of royalty. It has also a most admirable representation of Christ on the cross in a window at the back of the high altar, glorified by a most favorable light from above. Some of the columns are of Selesian black marble, which are magnificent. The vaulting is adorned with mosaic representations of the Eight Beatitudes.

We go to the Potsdam, the living palace, tomorrow, and I had hoped to visit the museum, where the exhibits are all the German costumes from time immemorial up to the present era, but we haven't the time to see everything.

I stepped into a jewelry store on Saturday afternoon and casually remarkd to the proprietor that I was an American from Texas. He immediately told me he was the partner of a Texan who had lived in Waco, Sims and Elrick, and to substantiate his statement showed me a letter received that day from the firm. Mr. Elrick is married and lives in Tennessee.

The styles are conservative and sensible in Berlin and Dresden; indeed, everywhere except in Paris, which is too creative to be conservative. Hats are quite pretty; butterfly sleeves and chic embroidered inexpensive waists.

Berlin at Night.

Have been out since 9 o'clock this morning and spent a very delightful day. Rode 12 miles in an auto car seating 20 or 25 passengers to Lake Wannsee on the Havel river, where we took an electric launch to Potsdam, a suburban town of 65,000, where one of the royal palaces is located. We passed the orangerie, a large park similar to Versailles. Enjoyed the place—the German palaces are not so attractive, but impress one with their massive grandeur and are built for ages to come.

Had a good dinner at 1 o'clock in the pergola, with dozens of other Americans. Swarms of bees filled the air, driven in from the country by the drouth. They alighted in every dish, even on the food being conveyed to one's mouth. They were harmless as no one dared molest them. They were in other countries than Germany.

Our most interest event of the day was the visit to Sans Souci, the home of Frederick the Great. His image in Carrara marble sits in his library chair, dressed as he was in his last illness. His pose, expression and bent poition as he peers through the window into his beautiful flower garden, down the vista with its fountains and terraces, is a most pathetic picture, as he approaches dissolution. His luxurious surroundings could not stay the hand of Death. Every fold in his marble robe is perfect.

This was the palace of the Great Elector before Frederick the Great. Napoleon I. has left his footsteps in every country he has invaded. A table in this palace has a large squere of the mosaic work cut out by him. The ugly scar has ruined the table. The opening on the little balony by which Napoleon made his exit has never been used and remains closed always.

The spinet of Frederick is just as he left it. The pictures in his gallery are by Matteau and Paul Potter, representations of court scenes chiefly, with some few pieces of sculpture. One corridor is hung with the stuffed heads of animals the present emperor has killed. All the furniture in two rooms is of solid silver. The library is in buhl. When the Huguenots were driven out of France they took refuge in Germany and were kindly received. They gave William I. all the tapestry for one room in the palace. One room was fitted up for Voiltaire, of whom the emperor was very fond, and I am writing these notes on Voltaire's table.

The library of Frederick the Great is just as it was in his lifetime, composed principally of French literature, which he preferred to that of his own nation. The park at Sans Souci is three miles long and one wide. At one entrance stands an historical windmill, near another is the royal mausoleum.

We went into the garrison church, where the soldiers worship, and where Kaiser Wilhelm II. sits with his officers in a box and the queen with her ladies opposite. The chair of Queen Louise is still used. The service is Lutueran and a sand glass sits on the pulpit and if the minister preaches a minute over the time he is reminded of it by the king.

A pristyle of white marble gives one entrance into the magnificent grounds, excelled by none other, not even Versailles. The fountains, terraces, greenery, statuary and varicolored plants converts this into an enchanted spot, diverting Frederick the Great from an invalid's chair during his last illness.

The royal mausoleum contains the sarcophigi of William and his wife Victoria, the father and mother of the present emperor. Our cars were waiting at this entrance, and we were soon whirled to Wannsee, a bathing resort on the lake, for a refreshing cup of tea. Here I talked with a tourist who had just come from Siberia and Russia and reported that region almost like the tropics during his stay there. Last afternoon we were caught in a shower, and since then it has been much cooler. We leave at 7:30 in the morning for Bingen on the Rhine.

Bingen, Thursday, Aug. 17.

As we approached the city, we saw the national monument on the heights to our right, erected as a memorial of the Franco-Prussian war when Napoleon III. was defeated. As part of the indemnity, Bismarck demanded Alsace and Lorraine together, with the return of the bronze horses already mentioned, in addition to a fabulous sum of money.

Coming from Berlin we passed through Frankfort-on-the-Main, the Halle university, where Emperor William, the present ruler, was educated. Weimar is another town on the route, where Schiller and Goethe lived. Martin Luther was born in Weimar and lived as a monk at Erfurt in the monastery not a great distance away. He wrote the large and shorter catechisms, revised the Bible and brought about the reformation.

Handel was born at Halle. All this country is replete with historic interest. The Rothschild family originated at Frankfort, where we stopped but two hours. We passed through Mainz or Mayence, the birthplace of Gutenberg, who invented printing, and where there is a memorial erected to him.

Bingen, famous in song and poetry, is a clean, attractive city of 75,000 inhabitants, probably more. On our trip here I saw baskets traveling out of the city on wires. Two sets of wires, running parallel were conveying them, loaded with lumber. Of coirse they returned to be reloaded. I presumed they were propelled by electricity.

Bonn, Friday, Aug. 18.

I am sitting by my window, enjoying the outlook on the Rhine. This river far exceeds in Danube in width and volume, saying nothing of the picturesque and legendary castles that line its heights. Bonn has 65,000 souls and is noted principally for its university of 3000 students and its being the birthplace of Beethoven and Schuman, whose homes we have visited. A fine cathedral is here, with unique window decorations, a circle of smaller rose windows within a larger one representing Biblical scenes.

We next pay our respects to the Cologne cathedral, to the shrine of the three wise men and to the bones of St. Ursula and her eleven thousand virgins.

The Cologne cathedral is said to be the grandest example of Gothic architecture in the world. It contains the bones of the Magi and the heart of Marie di Medicis is buried here. It contains also the tomb of St. Ursula and the 11,000 virgin companions, who were massacred at Cologne on the saint's return from Rome. The church is full of the bones of martyrs. Here 37 German emperors have been crowned. The swaddling clothes of the Savior are preserved in its archives, but are seen only once in seven years.

The Empress Helena, mother of Constantine, was one of the first converts to Christianity and did much to preserve the relics of our Savior. A bronze statue memorializes her in this cathedral. She took many of the sacred relics to Rome from Jerusalem, and it was she who founded the Cologne cathedral.

Down the Rhine.

During the sail, castles in ruins, castles restored, sites of castles were as numerous as leaves in Vallambrosa. A few are owned by Americans who have restored and who occupy them as summer homes. Adolphus Busch owns one. There were romantic seats of the Bonapartes, the Rhinestein owner by Prince Henry of Prussia, who has visited the United States, and the Drachenfels, celebrated in Childe Harold by Byron. The last two are the most interesting to me, as I had the pleasure of a visit through one of them.

Prince Henry keeps his in good repair, although he visits it only once a year. This castle was built in the sixteenth century. I am taking notes on the dining table. There is another famous clock here, which has been running for centuries. Two goats come out and engage in mortal combat while the clock strikes. The doors close on their dead bodies when the striking ceases. The castle has a dungeon, of course. There is a luxuriant oleander garden and a small park, with restaurant attached. It has a commanding and sweeping view of the Rhine and the surrounding country.

The Drachenfels' legend was of a struggle between the Pagans and the Christians. There was a cat tower as well as the famous mouse tower, about which hung a very gloomy legend in connection with Satto, the archbishop of Mayence. Retributive rats are said to have eaten the cruel archbishop, who once burned the poor during a famine because he said they consumed corn like mice. We soon curved around the famous Lorelei rock. Here sat the enchantress and to lure sailors to their destruction sang as she combed her golden hair.

The Rhine runs generally between high banks terraced into vineyards, and on the heights are picturesque castles, mostly in ruins and all with legends. On the Rhine we passed Apollonaris, where the bottled water is shipped, and the Rhine wines are from vineyards on this river.

NAMES OF POLITICIANS PERSONA NON GRATA

New Orleans Doesn't Desire to Have More Schools Named for Them.

By The Associated Press.

New Orleans, May 11.—Owing to the numerous controversies which have disturbed the New Orleans system of public schools in recent years over the naming of schools, public buildings and parks for men prominently identified in politics, a bill providing for the abolishment of such practices is being prepared and will be presented to the state legislature which is in session at Baton Rouge.

One of those who has taken a leading part in the framing of the measure is quoted today as follows:

"Such a measur would help to keep the petty politician out of the school system by removing one of the incentives he now has, that of having a monument erected to him. It is bad enough to hav a structure named after a politician after he is dead, but to have them named for living politicians is the limit."

LABOR UNREST ALARMING ENGLAND

INDUSTRIAL TROUBLES PILING UP WITH EVER INCREASING VOLUME.

London Courts Decide That Sardine Is Any Small Fish That Is Packed in Oil.

Special to The Morning News.

London, May 11.—After a legal battle rivaling the anti-trust suits in the American courts, the Guildhall court has decided that a sardine is any small fish packed in oil. The action took the form of a summons under the merchandise marks act, at the instance of a firm of French sardine packers, against a Newcastle fishing company for falsely labeling sprats as sardines. It was proved to the satisfaction of the court that the sardine of science is the immature pilchard, but it was held that the name sardine has been applied so long to any small fish packed in a certain manner that no action could be taken against the Newcastle packers. Eminent counsel were engaged on both sides and experts ranging from famous caterers to the fish curator of the British museum were summoned to give testimony.

The latest outbreak against the benevolent government of Rhodesia by the British South Africa company takes the form of a revolt against the enforcement of an ordinance promulgated from the local office of the company imposing a universal labor tax of twenty-five cents per head in the colony to cover the cost of recruiting native labor, which is very scarce.

The ordinance was confirmed by the legislative council, which ordered the payments to be made to the native labor bureau before the fifteenth of each month. The farmers declared that they would not pay the tax, although they are threatened with ruin through the shortage of labor. They allege that the tax is imposed by a private company run in the interests of mine owners. They appealed to the administrator, who refused to interfere. When the date for the first payment approached only two farmers appeared with the tax money and the administration began to summon recalcitrants in batches of from 80 to 100 at a time. In some cases fines of fifty dollars have been imposed, but these remain unpaid. The farmers now declare that if the authorities distrain on their property they will resist even to the extent of bloodshed and civil war.

The "Success," the oldest sailing ship in actual use today, has sailed to New York, where she will be placed on exhibition. The packet was built of teak wood for the Australian government and used for many years as a convict ship. It has been many years since the sinister ship made its last voyage with a cargo of human derelicts, but in 1895 it made the venturesome trip from South Australia to the mouth of the Thames. On this voyage a steamship commander reported, after meeting the "Success," that he had seen the phantom ship, the "Flying Dutchman." Just as the ship was preparing for her American trip her entire crew deserted, and it was only by offering double pay that she was able to sign on another. In striking contrast to her ancient rig is the powerful wireless station on the old ship, the operator for which has his office in one of the old convict cells.

The United Kingdom has been suffering from labor unrest in an increasingly menacing manner for several years now, and the end is still not in sight.

The report of Sir George Askwith, the chief industrial commissioner, popularly known as "the strike breaker," shows that in 1911 there was a stoppage of work affecting 565,000 workers, largely men engaged in transport, cotton mills and on railways. The transport workers caused most of the trouble, 345,000 of them being affected.

During the year 92 cases were dealt with under the consiliation act, and in 35 cases a strike was prevented, while the others were finally settled by the itnervention of Sir George Askwith, or by some other person appointed as conciliator or arbitrator. Formerly most of the applications for intervention came from the employes, but recently the great majority of them have been joint ones on the part of the employers and their work people. Besides accomplishing the good work shown by the report the conciliation act has resulted in 293 conciliation boards being appointed in industrial districts.

If the threats now being made come to anything, there is lots of work ahead for the "strike breaker." The railway men, who tied up most of the great lines last year, are not yet satisfied with their lot. They complain that the companies are bent on pursuing a policy of delay in connection with the conciliation scheme, the same complaint which gave rise to last year's outbreak. Another complaint is that during the coal strike the companies, saying that they had not sufficient coal to carry on the full services, knocked off a great many men, and that in doing so invariably chose men who had been active in trade unionism. The enforced idleness of union men in turn affected the funds of the unions, those without work receiving unemployed benefits.

These matters are being aired in the press and in parliament, but because of red tape cannot be officially dealt with by the new machinery set up by the railway commission after the last strike until July.

Meanwhile the men are getting more and more restless and there is now danger that the unions will order the men to "down tools" just when the railways are busy with their mid-summer traffic.

There are also irritating little disputes between the dock workers and their employers, and in the building trades the men are preparing demands to be laid before the master builders, which, if not complied with, will cause a strike of the skilled workmen and their laborers.

The first letters received here from the Dr. Mawson antarctic expedition, which left Hobart for the South Polar regions last winter, show that several important discoveries have been made.

Dr. Mawson has disproved the existence of Llairies Land, confirmed the existence of Termination Land, discovered by Wilkes, but not seen either by the "Challenger" or the "Gauss," discovered numerous islets along the Great Barrier, and charted much previously unknown coast line.

The landing party, under Frank Wild, and numbering seven men, is now working on what will prove to be the biggest glacier in the world. Dr. Mawson's vessel, the "Aurora," which brought the reports, will leave again for the south towards the end of the year to bring out the expedition. The expedition has been split up into various parties, which, working from different bases, are pressing south from their landing places between Adelie Land and Kaiser Wilhelm Land. Lieutenant Ninnis, who is at the first base with Dr. Mawson, writing from Adelie Land, says:

"We have had an exciting time since leaving Hobart. The day we reached Macquarie island we struck a rock in Carolines Cove and found a shipwrecked crew to the north of the island. I was in charge of the dogs and went ashore, where I lived with the islanders in their hut. At three o'clock one morning we were hauled out of bed to weigh anchor, as the 'Aurora' had once again drifted on the rocks. We cleared from Macquarie and after days met with the ice park. Here we were hung up for five days, and after getting loose discovered an ice barrier and new land to the east of Adelie Land. We are now going west and may land at any moment."

Frank Wild and his party remained at the western base and when Dr. Mawson and his companions left the storms had been so bad that Wild expressed some doubt as to ever seeing them again. His work was prosecuted under the most trying and painful circumstances, but he succeeded in mapping a great deal of the coast line before sending his report to the home base.

It is now settled that a private Danish corporation will be granted the St. Thomas harbor concession. A majority of the parliamentary committee appointed to investigate the request of the company has reported in its favor, and it is hardly likely that the concession will encounter an adverse vote in the Rigsdag. The committee agreed that the opening of the Panama canal means a new era for the Danish West Indies, which would render an improvement of St. Thomas harbor absolutely necessary. The company, which will be given a 99-year lease on the harbor, will spend millions on its equipment, with the idea of making it a safe port for the largest ships using the canal. A majority of the committee demands that the company shall not transfer the lease to other parties without the consent of the government. A minority of the committee opposed the grant on the plea that the government itself should profit by the opening of the canal.

During the past week over 6000 Scottish artisans and agriculturists have embarked for Canada. They are the pick of their classes and their departure has renewed the criticism that the land and labor policy of the government is driving the best men from the country. All of the emigration agents of the various colonial dominions are reporting an extraordinary demand for passage from prospective immigrants, and it is said that the present steamship lines will not be able to handle much more tahn half of this traffic during the coming season.

PRISON POPULATION INCREASED DURING APRIL

Figures Are Submitted By Prison Commission Touching Texas Penal Affairs.

LONDON HAS NO HOPES AT OLYMPIC

SEES AMERICANS CARRYING OFF ALL HONORS OF INTERNATIONAL MEET.

Special to The Morning News.

London, May 11.—London is looking forward to the coming Olympic games at Stockholm with brace pessimism, for everyone knows that the picked English athletes who are to represent John Bull are almost sure to return without any laurels.

One of the most prominent members of the London Athletic club, S. Abrahams, said the other day:

"The country which will sweep everything before her at Stockholm is America.

"Not only has she the big men, but she shows the highest standard of excellence; and where the average is high, the best man will be a champion. At London we saw the Americans signalize every event. In the hurdles they provided all the finalists, in both the 100 metres and 200 metres two finalists, and in the 400 metres three.

"As for ourselves, we can only hope for the best and be prepared for the worst; enter for the Olympic of 1912 as competitors and prepare for 1916 as victors. The suggestion that we can then win—that we can beat the world in 1916—given the will and the opportunity, is no mere boast built to conceal our deficiencies, but a stout fact confirmed by such masters of athletics as the American experts themselves.

"In Alex Nelson we have a splendid coach, but a coach cannot do miracles.

"It seems to have been thought in many circles that there is something magical in the very words 'coach' and 'trainer,' that it was only necessary to appoint one of the 'very numerous and perfectly competent professional experts' with which the country was, of course, swarming, to recover the lost supremacy, which was, after all, not lost, but only successfully challenged.

"It does not seem to have struck such optimists that a successful coach must be developed like a successful athlete, and even more so, for the born coach in the strictest sense can hardly be said to exist. In order to teach he must first learn, and in a country such as this, where, to speak candidly, method has never been studied, no professional has had the opportunity of absorbing the technique of athletics, particularly in the field events, where analysis of movement is of vital importance.

"Nelson, where he has particular knowledge, is an excellent and progressive coach, as the Cambridge men and such L. A. C. athletes as knew him when he was attached to Stamford Bridge, can testify. But it would be an injustice to expect such results from him, as can be shown by Mike Murphy in America, and Hjertberg in Sweden.

"But let him be sent to America for six months, let the technique of athletics in this country be seriously considered, and Nelson, and others like him, will by 1916 have a body of athletes capable of holding their own all round, whereas, at Stockholm for several events it will be practically a waste of money to send any representative at all.

"A medical man, and one well known in the athletic world, pointed out some time ago in a sporting magazine that English athletes would find victory increasingly difficult as athletics became world-general, and, he added that, physically speaking, the world's champion might be the product of any country.

"It is true; we are flooded by numbers, and world-beaters are scattered everywhere. Italy had Lunghi; France's Bouin and Finland's Kuhhmainen have vanquished our best long distance men; Germany possesses in Braun the likely winner of the 800 metres, and in Passemann the finest all round jumper in the world; Japan may very easily give us a Marathon winner."

FARMER SHOOTS AT AVIATOR.

Paris, May 11.—A military aviator, Corporal Gilber, had an exciting experience yesterday while flying over Le Puy. The curious thing about the experience was that although the airman was in danger he knew nothing of it until he grounded.

Gilbert was flying fairly low over some fields, when a farmer, taking him and his machine for a big bird, ran for his gun, which was hanging on the branch of a tree, and fired three times at the aeroplane.

The farmer had mistaken the aeroplane for a species of eagle, about which there is a superstition in that part of the country that it ruins the crops if it is seen to fly in Holy Week and is not shot.

Corporal Gilbert, who had heard the shots and seen the smoke, thought a salvo was being fired in his honor and dropped a handful of pamphlets, asking for subscriptions for army aeroplanes.

The old farmer was convinced that though he did not kill the bird, he shot some feathers from its tail.

Will This Be Your Fate? This Man Died Of Handling Money

Special to The Morning News.

London, May 11.—A remarkable cause was assigned the death of Abraham Robinson at the inquest which was held at East Ham yesterday.

Robinson was a collector employed by the Gas Light & Coke company, his duty being to visit about a hundred houses a day and collect the coppers from penny-in-the-slot gas meters.

Dr. Feeley, who attended him, said that he died from chronic metallic poisoning. Many of the coins in the meters were covered with vendigris, and his fingers were usually green at the end of the day. He had a habit of curling his long fair mustache with his fingers, and this assisted in the absorption of the poison.

The jury returned a verdict in accordance with the medical evidence, and suggested that some method should be devised to make the handling of so many coins unnecessary.

DAY OF LITTLE WOMEN.

Special to The Morning News.

London, May 11.—This is the day of the little woman. Such is the opinion of Mr. Charles Frohman, the famous theatrical manager, who has returned to London, and who thinks that, in musical comedy in particular, the tall woman is no longer to be found.

The statuesque woman has departed from musical comedy, he says, and the audiences are only keen to see the little girl.

"I think, on the whole, I quite agree with Mr. Frohman," Miss Gertie Miller, the popular musical comedy actress, told an Express representative yesterday. "Some tall women look charming on the stage, but I think they are out of place in musical comedy.

"No, it is the little woman who is wanted there—at least that is my experience both at the Gaiety and here at the Adelphi.

IN KEEPING WITH THE TIMES.

A majority of the bishops of the Methodist church decided that it was best to take from the laws regulating the conduct of the members the inhibition of dancing, because the members did not observe the discipline. One of the greatest drawbacks to the growth of some of the denominations is the attitude on the pleasures of the young. They should endeavor to help the young people enjoy themselves directing them in their amusements, under the guidance and the direction of wise counsellors, teaching them that pleasure is no sin, but sin is in the heart, and the heart should be kept pure and clean. Those who are seriously considering the inate desires of the human heart are realizing that many of the amusements that have been prohibited by church rules are harmless, and that it is much better to let the young people dance and skate and sing and romp and play under the shadow of the church, among those who have been decently raised, rather than have them sneak away and surreptitiously indulge in such things with those whose influence is bad.

Dancing can be made harmful, and it can be made a harmless division. It depends upon who the dancers are, and the environment that surrounds them. It is perfectly natural for young people to desire and seek amusement, to want to be together, to dance, to laugh, to skate, and to participate in the other diversions that require activity and fellowship. Mothers and fathers should see that their children have a reasonable amount of such pleasures, as soon as they are old enough to properly enjoy them, and they should be willing to go with them, and know with whom they mix and mingle, and know the young friends of their children. More time and attention should be given to picking the companions of the children than in trying to prevent them from participating in the pleasures that their young friends indulge.

There are a great many good people, as good as there are in the world, who have been educated to believe that dancing is harmful, because when they grew up they were taught that it was, and they did not have the opportunity to learn how to dance, or maybe they knew some very wicked notorious characters who danced. We must not deny ourselves things just because bad people use them, for if we were to carry this out to its logical sequence we would refuse to do many real good things because these same people do them.

Dancing is not harmful per se, but it can result in much harm. When the church takes a more liberal view of amusements and pleasures, many young people who will not now come into the fold can be induced to become members. each the young people that all things are good and pure to those who are pure at heart. You can plant many wicked thoughts into young hearts by recounting the wickedness of the world, and, too, they naturally want to do the things that they are prohibited from doing. Religion that is worth while, the religion of Christ, should be broad enough to use all the things that call unto the young for the purpose of holding them under the influence of the church, where they can learn the sweet and beautiful lessons that were taught by the matchless life of Christ, the most merciful being that the world ever knew. There is a time for all things, and Scripture says that there is a time for dancing. A church would be doing a great deal of good if it could prepare a place for the young people to dance, instead of compelling them to seek this pleasure in public dance halls, or in questionable company.

There is one broad-minded rector in Texas who has a large parish hall, in which there is a piano. Once a month he has a meeting of the members of the parish, at which time he has an interesting program for their entertainment, and after this program has been given and refreshments have been partaken of, the young people dance for an hour, if they so desire. When the skating rink craze was abroad in Texas five years ago, he converted the parish hall into a rink, and the boys could skate a couple of hours for ten cents, instead of spending 25 cents at the city rink, in company with a miscellaneous aggregation. As a consequence he held the boys and the girls, and they did not associate with bad company. These things require patience and a genuine love for the young. We need more good people who are willing to devote more of their time to providing clean amusement for the children under the shadow of the church.

Flowers do not do much good after the eyes are closed and the brow is as palid as a slab of marble. Give your flowers while the eyes gleam with the brightness of life, and their fragrance can creep in upon the senses and the soft curved petals leave an impress upon a living brain. Flowers for the living.

It is much more important to teach our children to be kind, generous and helpful than to fill their heads with Latin and Greek and neglect their affections while their intellects are being developed.

A successful prize fighter is of much greater importance in the eyes of the average citizen than the most brilliant man who failed in his profession.

Love's Labor Lost -:- -:- Drawn Especially for The Morning News by Nell Brinkley

Even Cupid Can Be Fooled By a Maid With a Heart of Stone

ENCOURAGEMENT WINS.

It doesn't matter whether you like baseball or not, you must confess that you enjoy the knowledge of the fact that Waco has a winning ball team, and you are ready to root for them when they come home to play. Waco has a winning team this season, and ought to win the pennant, if the people of Texas will give them their hearty co-operation, and turn out to see them play when they come home. Baseball is a clean sport, and it should be encouraged. You may not agree with those who go to see the Sunday games, but there are thousands of people who do not have any other time to see the games, and they are entitled to this diversion if they enjoy it. Until the people who are called Christians, and who employ labor, give them time in the week days to see a ball game once in a while, they may expect the lovers of the sport to witness it on Sunday. Anyway, if you do not want to attend a game on Sunday, patronize the game some other day, if you want a pennant-winning team. Nothing helps a team win more than a royal welcome by their home people when they come back from a tour.

Word comes along the grape vine route that Uncle Sam is busily enlisting soldiers for Mexican frontier service. It it evident that he is getting ready to protect American and other foreign property there.

That story that tight skirts are responsible for knock-kneed women was probably inspired by selfish cloth manufacturers.

Speaking of General Grant at an anniversary dinner in his memory at Pittsburg, "Sunny Jim" Sherman said: "The opponents of a third term for Grant never charged that he strained or tried to add to the power of the executive. Congress and the judiciary suffered no assaults from him. His loyalty to the constitution and the laws was absolute; too absolute ever to be questioned. He did not deem himself the sole reliance of the republic. The spirit of a Caesar or a Cromwall was not within him. No greed for despotism led him astray. He raised no irreverent hand against the altar of the national sanctuary, its constitution and its courts. He aroused no mad confusion or chaos. Inordinate desire for power did not smother in him the high attributes of consistency, constancy and fairness. He was an architect of concord, not discord. He was quiet and content, not boisterous and discordant. Yet, even for him, the precept and example of Washington could not be spurned by the American people." Do you get that, Teddy?

We are rich or poor according to how we feel. Money has very little to do with the quality of heart and mind that makes one really and fruly rich. The most distressing poverty is the poverty of soul.

While some are laughing, others are weeping. It has always been so from the beginning of time, and it will always continue to be so.

If you fail to find out who your children are associating with, you need not weep and wail if they do not marry to suit you.

The wisest men acquire much of their wisdom in holding communion with nature. Nature is the source of all wisdom.

These days there are lots of people preaching who ought to be plowing, but it suits them better to preach.

It is very much easier to criticise some one for a fault than it is to control our own weaknesses.

Some people are so filled with envy that they cannot enjoy the good things that they have.

The manner in which you speak up for a friend indicates the degree of your friendship.

CITY TO GREET KNIGHTS WITH OPEN ARMS

GENUINE RECEPTION PLANNED FOR MORE THAN THOUSAND VISITORS THIS WEEK.

Entertainment Committee Seeking to Find Rooms for Pythian Guests.

Elaborate preparations are being completed for the entertainment of the delegates attending the annual meeting of the grand lodge of the Knights of Pythias which will be held in Waco May 14, 15 and 16.

More than a thousand delegates will be in attendance, and that the distinguished visitors will be royally entertained is assured. The entertainment committee, headed by Dr. J. S. Bailey, is exerting every effort to make the gathering one of the most pleasant and successful ever held in this city.

City Officials Busy.

That the city commissioners are interested in making the visitors welcome and their stay in the convention city a pleasant one, was evinced when that body requested the downtown merchants to decorate their places of business in honor of the coming of one of the most important gatherings which has been elected to come to the central city in several years. The merchants are heartily in favor of the scheme and say that they will do their part in making Waco presentable for the gala occasion.

An elaborate and interesting program has been arranged, and will be carried out by the local Knights. Preparations for the entertainment of between 1000 and 1500 visiting Knights is being made.

Chairman W. B. Knight of the hotel and accommodation committee, who has charge of the lodging of the visitors, requests that all who have a vacant room or rooms to spare and are in a position to care for one or more of the guests to communicate with him or a member of the committee at once.

PRESSMEN OF TWO MORE HEARST PAPERS STRIKE

WALKOUT EXTENDED TO SAN FRANCISCO AND ATLANTA SHEETS—SYMPATHETIC.

By The Associated Press.

San Francisco, May 11.—The pressmen of the Examiner, a Hearst newspaper, walked out tonight in sympathy with the striking pressmen of the other Hearst papers shortly before the first edition of the Sunday paper was due to go to press. The Examiner said it expected to get out some sort of paper tomorrow, but admitted it would be badly crippled.

There was no disorder and the business office said no business demands had been made; that the walkouts are purely a sympathetic demonstration.

Other morning newspapers ran off their first editions for country circulation but did not know whether they would be able to print later editions. It was understood the pressmens' union has the case under advisement.

Walk-Out In Atlanta.

By The Associated Press.

Atlanta, May 11.—Acting on a strike order said to have been issued by President Berry of the International union, the union Web pressmen on the Atlanta Georgian went on strike today. The Georgian missed its noon edition, but appeared as usual late this afternoon. The three local papers having agreed to stand by the others in case of trouble, the Journal withheld its noon edition but all other editions have been published as usual.

In Sympathy Strike.

The action taken by the Georgian pressmen was in sympathy with the strikers on Hearst Chicago newspapers.

SLIM HARRELL SIGNED BY CONNIE MACK'S MEN

THIRD BAYLOR STAR TO GET INTO BIG LEAGUES GOES TO THE ATHLETICS.

Slim Harrell was given a big demonstration by his fellow-students at Baylor University last night upon the news of his getting into the fastest baseball company in the world.

Harrell was signed yesterday by Hyman Pearlstone, himself an old Wacoan, acting for Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Athletics.

Harrell, who hails from Grandview, Texas, is in his fourth year at the university and has played that many seasons on the Baylor baseball team. He has made an enviable record on the slab and last year brought the flag to his team. Last summer he pitched for the Cleburne aggregation.

This makes the third Baylor man to get into the big leagues. Danforth, another pitcher who brought fame to Baylor, was picked up by Connie Mack last year and is now with Baltimore. Wiley, now with the St. Louis Cardinals, is the third.

MUCH ACCOMPLISHED BY MOTHERS' CLUB

Organization of Women of North Waco Holds Regular Meet.

The regular meeting of the North Waco Mothers' Club was held last Tuesday, May 7, at 3:30 p. m., at the school house, many attending. Mrs. W. J. West, president, called the meeting to order and made a few remarks about what had been accomplished during the past year and what was desired for the coming year. Summed up briefly the women have accomplished much, among the things secured being a Victrola, costing $50, a stand for same, valued at $40. They have also a supply of up-to-date records, which enables the children to enjoy the music at all times.

The walls of the rooms are also decorated with some pictures, gifts from the children. In the yard is several large swings, trapeze, many flowers and other things for the amusement of the little folk. These things have all been secured through the enterprise and unceasing work of the Mothers' Club, ably assisted by the school children.

Misses Mame Schaeper and Maud Daniel, the teachers at this school, came in for a large share of praise from the club, for these young women have been anxious and willing to aid in every way possible to the success of every undertaking in this part of the city in which the club was interested.

It may be of interest to some to know just how so much money is raised to make these needed improvements. Nothing has ever been sought on a charity basis. What they have secured has been by hard work, such as making and selling to the children hot chili during the winter months and ice cream in the summer time. Occasionally an entertainment was given and the shool children took part therein. A small admission was charged, but in every instance those who spent a nickel or dime got value received and more.

The club is planning for the future on a large scale. The school board has already purchased additional ground, which with what they already have gives a full block. At no distant day a new building is promised.

The club is free of debt and has a small amount of cash on hand.

The election of officers was left till the last. The president, Mrs. West, announced that she would not allow her name used as a candidate for re-election, notwithstanding her friends much desired her retention in this office, which she had filled so satisfactorily for several years. Miss Fannie Blackman, who had served as secretary for a long time also declined to offer for re-election. The election resulted as follows:

Mrs. Thos. Spencer, presignt; Mrs. A. W. Scales, vice-president; Mrs. Horace McDaniel, secretary; Mrs. J. M. Pittillo, corresponding secretary; Miss Maud Daniel, treasurer.

The retiring president and secretary were presented with a beautiful bouquet by the women and the club adjourned.

MANY STUDY AT WACO NIGHT SCHOOL

Foreigners Making Progress In Learning to English Language.

With more than 100 students in regular attendance the recently inaugurated night school at the Waco high school building is progressing nicely. Those in charge say a great number of young working men and women who are prevented from attending day school, are thus given an opportunity of acquiring an education.

In the foreign class about 20 students from almost everywhere are seeking to master the English tongue. Miss Fannie McLaren has charge of this branch of the work, and reports much progress. Among them is a Japanese. Germans and Italians lead in point of numbers.

The night institute holds sessions regularly three times each week, at the high school building. The sessions are held on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday nights, from 7:30 till 9:30 o'clock. Among the teachers are Prof. N. C. Carr, I. N. Odom, Miss Mannie McLaren, Miss Josephine Feegard. The classes are under the direction of Prof. E. T. Gen. heimer.

Was Intoxicated At Altar He Says, Asking a Divorce

Alleging that he was intoxicated when he stood at the altar and the ceremony, which united him in marriage, Dr. J. S. Smith, who says he is a resident of McLennan county, appeared in the Fifty-Fourth district court Saturday and asked that the marriage contract existing between himself and Mrs. Willie Mirtle Smith be dissolved.

After long drawn out proceedings, in which more than a dozen witnesses testified, including the plaintiff and defendant, Judge Munroe refused to annul the marriage.

FINDS MANY FLAWS IN TEN COMMANDMENTS

Philosopher Says Man Might Have to Lie or Be a Party to Murder.

Special to The Morning News.

Kansas City, Mo., May 11.—Professor Jay William Hudson of the philosophy department of the University of Missouri, found a lot of fault with the ten commandments in his lecture here. Not only did he find fault with the decalogue, but with its very being, the latter point being based on the perversity of men in insisting on doing what they are told not to do.

He said that the commandments conflict; that it is sometimes necessary to lie to avoid being party to a murder; that none can be condemned for stealing to save a life, and that "Thou shalt not kill" could be interpreted in many ways. He adds:

"If a doctor tells a patient he will recover, when in truth he has but faint hope for him, is the lie a moral wrong?

"The commandments are too simple for present day life, which is multiform and complex.

"It is impossible to make the same code of moral rules for every person. Even if men could be forced to follow the Ten Commandments there would be no moral merit in it."

REGULAR MEMBERSHIP MEETING OF Y. M. B. L. TUESDAY

The regular monthly meeting of the Young Men's Business League will meet at the Business Men's Club rooms at 8 o'clock Tuesday.

There will be many subjects come up before the session from the various committees. Plenty of entertainment has been planned for the "live wires" and it will be a general "get together" and "booster" meeting. All members who have the best interest of the city at heart are urged to be present.

SEES CONDITIONS IN TEXAS VERY FAVORABLE

Burrow, Jones & Dyer Representative Makes Waco Headquarters.

S. G. Pedigo, representing The Burrow, Jones and Dyer Shoe Company, of St. Louis, one of the largest concerns in the United States, is at present a Waco visitor. Mr. Pedigo is covering a great portion of Texas and reports conditions throughout the state as being very favorable.

It is generally understood says Mr. Pedigo, that when crop conditions are good Texas merchants are the easiest to sell to. However, it is at no time a hard task to get a good distribution of his line of goods.

For a short time he will make Waco his headquarters, leaving here in about a month for a tour through the north and east. Mrs. Pedigo has been living in the city for several months. She will join Mr. Pedigo on his trip east. They are both very much impressed with the future possibilities of Waco and on their return trip to Texas will no doubt make this city their home.

LOSS OF THE TITANIC UNBALANCED WOMAN'S MIND

Special to The Morning News.

San Francisco, May 11.—The loss of the Titanic is believed to have unbalanced the mind of Mrs. A. E. Rider, who says she is a relative of William T. Stead, the journalist who was drowned in the disaster. Mrs. Rider was taken to the detention hospital here tonight and held for observation after she had been removed from the entrance to a bank, where she lingered, desiring, it is said, to give the president some advice on the stock market.

Before the wreck of the Titanic Mrs. Rider received a check for $1,500 from relatives in England, and was preparing to return there. Following the Titanic's loss, the police say she bought thirty hats, the same number of dresses, and an incredible number of trunks to put them in.

T. R. MEN TO CONTEST GEORGIA AT CHICAGO

Atlanta, May 11.—Reports received at the headquarters of the Roosevelt progressive club of this city, it was stated tonight, indicate that Roosevelt republican conventions were held in practically all Georgia counties today to name delegates to the state and district conventions to be held May 17 and 18, respectively. According to St. Julian Yates, chairman of the club, the Roosevelt wing of the republican party in this state, will send a full contesting delegation to the national convntion. The Taft wing held a state convention in March and named 24 delegates to the Chicago convention instructed for Taft.

JURY MAY GET ALLEN CASE TOMORROW NIGHT

By The Associated Press.

Wytheville, Va., May 11.—Evidence in the case of Floyd Allen on trial here charged with the murder of Prosecutor Wm. Foster in the Carroll county court last March, was taken today.

Allen himself was on the stand today, and testified that Foster fired the first shot, and that he was wounded before he attempted to draw his revolver. He was emphatic in his denial that there was any conspiracy among the Allen clansmen to shoot up the court.

Instructions to the jury were argued this afternoon after court adjourned. Attorneys will begin arguments to the jury Monday, and it is expected the case will be placed in the hands of the jury by Monday night.

TEDDY NONCOMMITTAL ON ONE-TERM THEORY

By The Associated Press.

New York, May 11.—Commenting today on the resolution of Representative Clayton which proposes to fix the presidential term at six years and limit each president to one term, ex-President Roosevelt said:

"I have been asked to commit myself on every sort of fom-fool proposition, and I suppose this is one of them."

BAYLOR CINCHES CHAMPIONSHIP SOUTHWEST

GRABS GAME FROM A. & M. BY 3 TO 1—HENRY GETS TEN STRIKEOUTS.

Allows But Two Hits—Given Support by Infield—Little in Fine Play.

When Baylor defeated A. & M. yesterday she annexed the championship of Texas and the southwest. It was nobody's game until the last man was out. Henry pitched air-tight ball for Baylor, and the infield gave him perfect support. He allowed but two hits and got nine strikeouts.

The farmers secured their run in the third, when Benton singled, stole second, took third on an error, and scored on a wild throw to third. In the eighth the farmers came near scoring again, but were prevented by Harrell's throw from left, cutting the head runner down.

Baylor did her run-getting in the fourth, when McMahon singled, Collier followed with a single, Harrell sacrificed, advancing both runners. Then Dick Hooper hit and brought both men across the plate. In the eighth Moseley doubled, McMahon singled, and Collier followed with a two-base hit, scoring Moseley. This ended the run-getting.

The most sensational stunt of the game was a catch by Little, who climbed a dump and made a one-hand stab for a long drive. The score:

BUNCHES HITS IN THIRD AND DEFEATS HOUSTON BY SCORE OF 4 TO 2.

Brilliant Fielding Cuts Off Possible Hits and Brings the Victory.

By The Associated Press.

Houston, May 11.—Brilliant fielding behind Ogle, who was in danger several times, cut off possible hits and caused Houston's defeat. The visiting infield put up one of the classiest defenses of the year here. Houston, badly shaken up by injuries, fought gallantly, but did not play together, while Watson was uncertain early in the game. Waco bunched three hits in the third and won. The score:

Dallas 3, San Antonio 2.
By The Associated Press.

San Antonio, May 11.—Inability to hit Rube Evans in the pinches cost the Bronchos the final game of the series with Dallas today, 2 to 3. Evans made it two out of three on the series for him. The game was brilliant, but was marred by frequent yells from the players of both teams against Umpire Vansickle's decisions. His work appeared impartial, but he had a time calling them to suit either fans or players. San Antonio lost the game on two Dallas home runs over the fence. The score:

Beaumont 3-3, Austin 2-1.
By The Associated Press.

Beaumont, May 11.—Beaumont won two of the prettiest games of baseball today that will likely be played here in many months. Seldom will two teams strain for every advantage as these players did today. Every man went after everything in sight and the games were full of sensational stops, catches and throws, including a fast double play by Ty Cook without assistance. Fort Worth 8, Galveston 6.
By The Associated Press.

Galveston, May 11.—In seventeen innings of the hardest kind of baseball, Fort Worth defeated Galveston this afternoon by a score of 8 to 6. Although outplayed, the visitors caught all of the breaks, and with luck in many places, combined with three home runs, managed to get away with the big end of the score at last. It was Galveston's game until the ninth inning, when, with the score standing 4 to 2 in favor of the Sand Crabs, the Panthers started a hitting rally, driving Heinrichsen to cover and forcing Manager Maloney to send in Moore, but not before three runs had been batted in, placing the visitors one count to the good. The Crabs came back in their session at bat in the ninth and tied the score. In the sixteenth Murch slammed the ball over left field fence, again placing the Panthers one run to the good, and again the Crabs tied the count. In the seventeenth Moore walked the first batter. Perritt, the next man up, hit to the pitcher, and in an attempt to stop the runner at second, Moore heaved the ball far away into center field, allowing both men to score. A double-header had been scheduled, but the second game was not attempted. The score:

COTTON MARKET CLOSES STEADY AT A DECLINE

OPENS HIGHER ON BETTER CABLES THAN DUE AND ON WEATHER REPORTS.

By The Associated Press.

New York, May 11.—The cotton market opened higher on better cables than due and reports of rain in the Mississippi valley but eased off under heavy, scattering liquidation, with the close steady, but at a decline of 6 to 10 points.

The market opened steady at an advance of 1 to 6 points on relatively firm cables and the weather news. Offerings were very heavy, however, making it look as though there were big overnight selling orders around the ring. The appearance of so much long cotton coming on the market seemede to offset the bullish weather news, and as soon as the market showed a tendency to ease off, the selling became aggressive.

After showing a net loss of about 10 to 15 points on the active months, rallies of 7 to 10 points occurred and closing prices were 4@5 points up from the lowest on the more active positions as a result of profit-taking.

The wet weather seemed to be moving eastward in the belt and weather indications were for clearing conditions. Doubt was expressed as to any prolonged period of unsettled weather, owing to the appearance of lower barometer over western Colorado, but the low area was described as a moderate one and evidently caused no apprehension of consequence.

Liverpool reported bull support in a comparatively narrow market and cables predicted improvement in weather condition over Sunday, suggesting rather a bearish average. The weekend figures had evidently been fully considered yesterday and therefore attracted no special attention.

Receipts today, 8,000 bales, against 8,736 last week, and 7,108 last year. Today's receipts at New Orleans, 2,195 against 1,749 last year; at Houston, 1,028, against 6,109 last year, and at Galveston, 1761, again 2,583 last year.

OLD LAWS TO GOVERN.

Fort Smith, Ark., May 11.—Laws that governed Indian Territory before that section was made a part of Oklahoma so statehood could be secured, will govern the trial of Will Hates of Heavener, Millard Vaught of Mena, Ark., and Will Styles of Cadihsville, Ark., who are to be tried at Poteau, Okla., during the term of court that opened yesterday for the murder of Bud Terry. Terry disappeared in 1907 at a time when Oklahoma and Indian Territory was not a state and according to a precedent, the laws in existence then must be revived for cases that are tried after statehood.

"Oh, I shouldn't worry," replied Mr. Brown, languidly. "Let her wait until the right sort of a man comes along."

"Why wait?" said Mrs. Brown, "I didn't."

MARKET BULLISH FROM RAIN DURING THE WEEK

SEED ROTTING IN GROUND IN MANY SECTIONS OF BELT IS THE REPORT.

By the Associated Press.

New Orleans, May 11.—The net result of this week's trading in cotton was an advance of 12 to 14 points on futures; on Tuesday prices were at their highest and the levels reached were the highest of the season; the low prices were made on Monday. At the highest the trading months were 49 to 53 points over last week's close; at the lowest they were 8 to 15 over.

The range of prices was 37 to 43 points. Unfavorable weather in the cotton belt was the main bullish influence of the week and caused the rise to new high levels; heavy profit-taking by longs was the main depressing influence. Selling out by bulls was in evidence practically all the time during the last half of the week.

In a nutshell the weather reports of the week noted too much rain in the central and eastern portions of the belt, while fairly favorable weather prevailed in eastern portions. Accompanying the rains in the eastern and central belts were complaints of seed rotting in the ground and lack of opportunity to plow.

Not a few sections sent in word that said seed was being put in the ground with no preparation. All Texas cotton was reported coming up to a good standard; no serious complaint was heard in that state. The liquidation of long cotton appeared to have its beginning among the strongest interests in the market and soon spread to thes trailers.

At the end of the week it was said that erstwhile bulls were attempting to force the unloading of certain long lines of cotton held by prominent operators. Liquidation was increased on the week end on the outlook for somewhat better weather over Sunday and the hope that the new week would bring more settled conditions in the belt generally. In the spot department prices rose three-eighths of a cent, middling closing at 11 15-16c, against 11 9-16c last week, and 15 1-2c this week last year.

Sales on the spot amounted to 1,398 bales, against 1,295 last week, and 3,903 this week last years. Sales to arrive totalled 3,225, against 1,070 last week, and 1,020 this week last year.

STOCK UNDERTONE IS DISTINCTLY STRONG

MUCH OF ACTIVITY, HOWEVER, CENTERS ABOUT MINOR SPECIALTIES.

By The Associated Press.

New York, May 11.—Although much of the activity of today's stock market centered about the minor specialties, the movement was at all times broad and the undertone distinctly strong. Lehigh Valley was the prominent rise which it soon increased to 2 points and before the end of the first half hour had extended to others. Some rumors affecting Lehigh Valley were in circulation, for example, to the effect that the directors would before long decide upon another issue of "valuable rights."

This lacked confirmation, however, in official quarters. Union Pacific and a few other high grade railway securities advanced to higher prices, but the movement was overshadowed by Lehigh Valley. In the industrial division United States steel was the most active issue, reflecting by its strength yesterday's announcement of another rise in prices in finished products.

American Can, common and preferred, repeated their now familiar feat of advancing to higher prices than before, a fact which may not have been unrelated to the strength of the anthracite coalers. Copper was firm on some slight renewal of demand, but the market as a whole derived much of its bullish impulse from the optimistic views as to general conditions in steel and iron. Bonds were fairly active with a degree of firmness.

Total sales, par value, aggregated $2,103,000.

U. S. bonds were unchanged on call throughout the week.

ENORMOUS WHEAT CROP ALONG ROCK ISLAND ROUTE
Special to The Morning News.

Fort Worth, May 11.—Information received at the general offices of the Rock Island railway from grain men along the lines of that company, show that the grain shipments for the coming season will be unusually large. Especially in the Panhandle is the grain reported in excellent condition and new grain elevators have been built recently at many places in that section. The new elevator at Groom has a capacity of 30,000 bushels; one at Shamrock has a capacity of 50,000 bushels, and McLean, Tex., is considering the construction of one with a capacity of 50,000 bushels.

Bat of Baker Held to Be One Winning Thing About Team

YA NEVER KNOW WHAT MOJO GETS HAS ALWAYS KEPT IT SINCE, EVEN SLEEPING WITH IT. BLES WERE TURNED ON TIGERS.

By W. J. MacBeth.

Special to The Morning News.

New York, May 11.—The world's championship baseball series of 1911 is a closed book. It dwells now in the public mind—the sport-loving public, that is—as an interesting epoch of ancient history. Fandom lives in the present; never in the past. Even to analytic minds the carnage and glory of last fall must have faded long ago. Memory is revived here only to throw additional light upon one feature of the past classic.

That feature embraces the chubby big bat that robbed McGraw of the world's championship pennant. The bat belonged to Frank Baker, the third baseman of the Athletics. He garnered two home runs in the series, the first off "Rube" Marquard, the second off the master of all pitchers, Christy Mathewsson. Philadelphia could never have won either game without Baker's pinch home runs. Had the two games in question fallen to the lot of the Giants, the Polo grounders would have taken the series by four games to two, the margin by which the Athletics triumphed.

Now about the well-oiled bat of Baker. A dozen diffeeent stories have been told as to how he came into possession of it. Here is the true story, told, we sincerely believe, for the first time. The existence of that famous stick of second-growth ash is due to the good fellowship that obtains in professional baseball as in other walks of life. The bat was made especially for George Simmons, the Rochester recruit of the Yankees, who has done considerable infield subbing for Harry Wolverton this spring. An admirer of the lad a couple of years ago while Simmons was a meber of Hughie Jennings' Detroit Tigers turned the stick with his own hands and presnted it to the consistent minor league slugger.

Simmons never had a great deal of luck with the cudgel. It was a trige short and top-heavy for him. He gave it a thorough trial, then discrdied it. He kept it only because it had been a present to him. Owen Bush, the clever litele shortstop of the Tigers, borrowed Simmons' bat one day after he had broken his own favorite shillaleh. As a result he had a very favorable and profitable afternoon. With that innane superstition of ball players in general, he fell in love with the stick. He wanted to buy it, but Simmons wouldn't sell. Finally Simmons was turned bac kto the Eastern league club by Detroit. Bush begged so hard for his favorite weapon thtt Simmons finally made nim a present of it.

For a time Bush prospered in his new mace. Only a fair hitter, he began to climb up to the .300 notch. He had many extra base hits in his collection of swats. But after a couple of months he fell away in form. He stuck to the bat until it was apparent that something was radically wrong with his form. Mentors advised him that the bat was too heavy and clumsy for such a little fellow. Bush found a new stick.

More than a year later the Athletics were in Detroit for a very important series. Prior to the game the third sacker of the Athletics borrowed Bush's discarded bludgeon for batting practice. He was so well pleased with its swing and balance that he approached Ownie on the matter of a swap. Bush had no particular use for the club. Besides he is a generous little chap.

"If the stick is any good to you, Frank," he said, "why go ahead and take it—it's yours. Only don't tell Simmons. He gave it to me."

That afternoon the world's champions turned the tables on the Tigers. Baker led the onslaught on Mullin, Donovan and Summers. He had four hits in five times to the plate, the collection including a couple of doubles and a homer. Baker has never since let that good stick out of his sight. It is said he slept with it during the world's series last fall.

Thus it will be seen that fate used the hapless Highlanders as an instrument towards Connie Mack's greater glory in 1911. New York handed the peanant to the Quaker City by walloping the living daylights out of Detroit all season. It was the Highlanders that first made the Jungaleers hit the toboggan. The first few weeks threatened a walkover for Detroit. The sensational winning streak of the Bengals was broken by New York. Every time after that when Detroit gave any evidence of pulling together and heading off the Athletics it met with reverses at the hands of Gotham. Hal Chase's club lost as consistently to the White Elephants as it won from the City of the Straits.

And then the world's series. Where Baker have been without his formidable bat? But for Simmons, who is now a Yankee, this slugger would never have seen the piece of wood that he loves as dearly as his immortal soul. Bush may claim the credit of aiding the Athlettics to the highest honor of baseball. But do you not think that Simmons at least shares the halo with Baker and with Bush?

Just another little speculation before the veil is drawn. Did you ever stop to consider how lucky both Baker and his bat were to gain such undying fame on two hits? In 1903 Fred Clarke a world's championship for Pittsbirg in identically the same fashion. He robbed Detroit of the honor by annexing two separate games with home runs. And both of his demon blows fell with men on the bases. This wonderful old player, a true hero of full fifteen campaigns, attracted not even a passing mention through his performance. That was a series that went the full limit of seven games and one in which the scores on both sides were unusually high and fluctuating. Neither blow fell at such critical points of high tension as the circuit smashes of J. Franklin Baker.

Whoever mentions the deadly blow of "Rube" Oldring in the fifth game of the world's series with the Giants? His home-run smash off Marquard in the third inning of that tilt at the Polo grounds was the most damaging smash of the series. His liner cleared the center-field bleachers, carried far into the crowd and tallied two runs ahead of the batter. It was the prettiest pinch hit imaginable, far it fell with two down. It gave Jack Coombs a 3 to 0 handicap. Yet, strange to say, Oldring was but an eight-inning hero. The Giants got to Coombs for a run in the seventh; the tied the count on him in the ninth. Eventually Crandall beat out Plank, who was substituted too late for Connie's great pitcher, who had strained himself earlier in the game. Oldring's home run did not stand out because Philadelphia lost. Joe Tinker's home run in 1908 in all probability decided a world's championship in favor of the Cubs over Detroit. It unnerved Bill Donovan, who for seven innings had pitched one of the most phenomenal games of history. But Joe Tinker's swat was clouded by the fusilade of hits off Doovan that succeeded, once the ice was broken.

There are some strange superstitions in baseball. One in connection with Baker's bat may be interesting enough to bear watching. Simmons and Bush declare there's a hoodoo in Baker's stick that will get a fellow sooner or later. The first time in his life that Simmons fell from the .300 hitting class was when he used this same cudgel. Bush started out on its ownership like a Ty Cobb. In a couple of months he couldn't hit a lick with it.

Frank Baker had his renowned ash but a short time last fall before the opening of the world's series. With it he swatted like a demon. He is using the cudgel still. But his hitting this season has been away below par. Is there a jinx in that piece of timber and is it working on Baker now? If you are at all interested in superstitions watch the batting averages.

TOOK 27 YEARS TO CROSS CONTINENT

Clark Left California In 1885 To Come To Dobbs Ferry, New York.

Special to The Morning News.

New York, May 11.—Walter Clark started from Eureka, Cal., 27 years ago, for Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., and reached his destination only a few days ago. But his cousin, Webster Clark, whom he had expected to find there, had moved to Montpelier, Vt., five years previously, so he had to extend his trip.

Starting from the California city in 1885, Clark stopped when he got to Salt Lake City and remained there seven years. His next halting place was Wichita, Kan.; there he remained until 1903. Mackinaw, Mich., was his next stopping place, and he stayed there until a few weeks ago.

It is not contended that Clark has walked.

It Is the "Simple Life" for Abe Attell For a Long Time

QUITS CARD TABLE, WHERE HE HAD PHENOMENAL LUCK, WINNING $30,000 IN TWO WEEKS, FOR CALIFORNIA WILDS.

By W. W. Naughton.

Special to The Morning News.

San Francisco, May 11.—Abe Attell, deposed featherweight champion, is now located among the whispering redwoods on Billy Nolan's ranch in Lake county. Abe left the city carrying a stiff upper lip and with the "never again" pennant flying at the fore peak.

He intends to spend several months on the Nolan estate and saturate himself thoroughly with whatever brand of ozone they advertise up there. He is to eat ranch fare, follow the plow and retire to rest with the birds or rather at a corresponding hour.

Above all, he is not to touch cards or at least not in games where a yellow chip represents an outlay of $20 and whites are redeemable at a dollar apiece. This is one of the clauses in the contract which binds Attell and Nolan.

Under ordinary circumstances it might have been hard for Nolan to induce Abe to relinquish his beloved poker, but they say there were reasons why the ex-champion was quite satisfied to have a paragraph forbidding dalliance with straights and flushes inserted in his newest agreement. Here they are:

Attell has done little else but play poker since he lost to Tommy Murphy. It's a way he has of forgetting the jibes and sneers of this cruel old world. Some fellows drown their sorrows in the flowing bowl. Attell buys a stack and forgets dull care.

Abe had phenomenal luck. It may sound like a fairy tale, but if the votaries of the circular tables are to be believed the one time featherweight king won $30,000 in a couple of weeks. Then Dame Fortune began to feel as if she had done quite enough for Abey. The cards ran against him and some $7000 slipped away like sand through the fingers.

Just about that time Nolan came along. He unfolded his scheme of rejuvenation and remarked that poker was the first thing that he would insist on having tabooed. Abe was all too ready to fall in with Nolan's views. The scheme enabled Attell to hang on to over $20,000 of some one else's money and absolved him from a suspicion of "cold feet." He could not play any more because his new manager had made him renounce the pastime.

And so they went to the range country. And if, as has been said, good resolutions are sometimes converted into paving stones, Abe's output will be ample to build an esplanade from here to Santa Cruz.

Nolan thinks that a few months of simple life will enable Attell to resume his championship and bowl over an assortment of lightweights and featherweights on the side. Abe is of the same way of thinking. But such is the incredulity of human nature that bets are being made Abe will be seen around his old haunts in the city before two weeks go by.

When Attell is himself again he intends to go after Tommy Murphy. He is afraid his new stock of fighting ginger may not be lasting, and he wants to fall upon the Harlem boy while he is feeling supple and tigerish. He has a score to wipe out with both Murphy and Manager Buckley, and he intends to kill two birds with one stone.

Johnny Kilbane can wait. Abe has no complaint against Kilbane, apart from the chagrin he feels at losing the championship. Besides, Kilbane has promised him a return match, and the second meeting will come all in good time.

Abe is sore against Champion Wolgast for some reason and would like to inveigle him into a bout. The fact that Ad has repelled all Abe's advances has not improved things.

"He doesn't forget the beating I gave him at Los Angeles back in 1908," said Abe. "Wolgast and Jones trembie whenever my name is mentioned.

They say when Jones heard this he waxed "real sarcastic."

"Well, well, what changes have taken place since 1908," he murmured. "Then Attell was a champion and a world-beater. He was at the top of the tree and Wolgast was a scrapper of the hobo stamp, unknown and unhonored. Now Wolgast's fame is world-wide. His reputation is made and his name is on everyone's lips, while Attell is as much of a has-been as a last year's tan shoe."

This was said after Abe had left town. I'll bet when he heard it he took a couple of extra pulls at the ozone and resolved to stay with Nolan's reform schedule harder than ever.

The sports hereabouts will watch with interest for results of the Nolan-Attell deal. There are numbers who believe all that ailed Abe in his recent matches was late hours and violation of the rules of training. Those who hold such views believe that Nolan, who is a shrewd conditioner, will bring Attell back into the fighting fold in such shape that the little Hebrew will regain his lost laurels.

There are others who think that Attell has shot his bolt. They say he has lost his speed, his punch and his confidence and that he is past patching up.

There are others again—cynics, of course—who think that the lure of the clubrooms will prove too strong for Abe—that the quiet of the hill life will render him restless and gloomy and that he will break camp some fine afternoon when Nolan is absorbed in farm problems.

WOLGAST FORCED TO GO "SOME" TO GET DRAW

EXTENDED SELF TO LIMIT WITH WILLIE RICHIE IN FOUR-ROUND BOUT.

By The Associated Press.

San Francisco, May 11.—Ad Wolgast was forced to extend himself to the limit today to get a newspaper draw in his four-round bout with Willie Richie. For the first two rounds Richie kept the champion on the defense.

The champion was staggered in the second round by a long range stab to the chin, but recovered quickly. Richie took the count twice in the third, although he came back strong and carried the fight to Wolgast in the fourth, when the latter was bleeding profusely from cuts in the fact and mouth. The general opinion of the fight fans seemed to be Wolgast failed to extend himself or that he has gone backward somewhat as a result of his operation for appendicitis.

PRESIDENT'S WIDOW EIGHTY YEARS OLD

Mrs. James A. Garfield Is Honored On Birthday By Neighbors In Pasadena.

Special to The Morning News.

Pasadena, Cal., May 11.—Mrs. L. R. Garfield of Pasadena, widow of the martyred president, James A. Garfield, celebrated her eightieth birthday here recently.

In honor of Mrs. Garfield, Mrs. George Ellery Hale of Rose avenue, South Pasadena, entertained at her home with a luncheon, where the aged woman was the recipient of congratulations, remembrances and flowers. Mrs. Garfield has resided at Buena Vista street and Meridian avenue, Pasadena, 10 years. She has been visited at her home by both President Taft and Roosevelt when they were in Pasadena.

GREATER WACO.

It is a pleasant surprise to note how the business men of Waco realize the forward movement, and prepare themselves and their business accordingly for accommodation of their customers. P. Richman, a pioneer of Waco, started in business with a small capital and has step by step grown, built up a business to where today his present location is entirely too small and behind times to accommodate his loyal customers, whom he served equally as loyal and honest through all the past years, and in order to show his appreciation he has leased the handsome, spacious building of Dr. Colgin, No. 511, Austin street and will remodel it and furnish it with the latest style of fixtures and will equip to the minute and in detail, that his friends of the city and vicinity will be proud of the opportunity to come into to shop or to spend a leisure hour there. The stock he will put in the new store will be the very latest in styles, materials of the best the market will afford this season, and his motto, "a square deal to all" which he has maintained in the past, and has won him success, will continue to be the same as long as he remains in business. Credit and success to P. Richman. 5-12

USES REVOLVER IN PLACE OF USUAL DINNER BELL

Special to The Morning News.

Cleveland, O., May 11.—When Michael Demeter returned home at noon his wife was not in sight, neither was his expected dinner. He searched through the house, growing hungrier every minute.

After some deliberation as to the best means of apprising his wife of his return home he made up his mind that if he fired a few shots into the ceiling his wife would undoubtedly come back. His wife heard, but instead of hurrying home at once she telephoned to the police.

In a few minutes, instead of his wife, Demeter saw a wagonload of policemen at his door.

Demeter explained the situation to the police, but they insisted on taking him to the eighth precinct station, where they locked him up on the charge of violating the fire-arm ordinance.

UNREST.

When the Creator of all things completed His labors of six days His crowning work was man. When He breathed the breath of life into his nostrils he became a living soul. His image indestructable, a creature capable to worship, companionable; therefore a companion of like capacities was provided for him. A home with its sacred environments, a limit to boundary and the chief blessing was employment for these ideal creatures. In the cool of the evening the Creator came into the garden and talked and walked with them. Methinks there was sweet anticipation looking forward to this congenial meeting. I love to think of this meeting as I did when a little girl at the close of one of our days. We know nothing of how time was reckoned in the days of the world's early life.

All was well until the test was applied to the will power of man, and, sad to record, he yielded to the influence that was brought to bear. At once harmony was destroyed and the connection was broken that linked man to the Infinite; the home life wrecked and the home left desolate. An angel from the courts above was called to administer the penalty of a violated law. Wanderers this couple became in a new and strange world to them.

This unrest born of disobedience has ever been accepted because the great heart of God, moved to pity, promised a panacea for all ills that should come to man through the faith in the promise that the seed of the woman should bruise the serpent's head. There is a physical unrest which is calling forth sainest thought and study from our ablest writers. This unrest has become alarming in the last two decades.

Some say it is the result of the civil war, but they with outstretched hands feel helpless when a remedy is asked for. This nervousness, as it is called, is not confined to any particular class, but all feel its withering touch.

The prince of finance a few years ago was stricken with a nervous complaint. The air cells were completely destroyed as if they had been subjected to a withering heat and the head was without natural advancement. The appetite took wings and flew away. It was said at the Christmastide his daughter asked: "Father, what do you want?" meaning a gift. He answered at once, "An appetite."

The home life has been completely changed, many landmarks have been torn away. The old-fashion room called 'mother's room" is relegated to the past. The mother with her many social duties leaves the rearing of her little ones to trained nurses and governesses. The little girl is sent while young to a boarding school, and the boy to college. The father's business responsibilities takes him from home; his palatial residence is in many respects far from being a home—only a display of exhausted vitality and burdened brain. The get rich fever has taken vital hold on the American people and its effect is felt by the middle and poorer classes, and the result is terrifying.

Honor lost, the sacred relations of married life are spoken lightly of. We have become a nation of nervous wrecks. Strong men collapse and women indulge in stimulants to ward off nervous prostration.

Pardon me for a little family history. My grandparents were Scotch and English. Their parents emigrated from Virginia to Kentucky when truly it was "the dark and bloody ground." Wild animals roamed the heavily timbered country fearlessly. Those early settlers hardly knew their strength. Their diet was plain and harships were their daily lot. Busy hands all day made restful sleep at night. They accumulated property year by year and their posterity owned many slaves at the beginning of the civil war, indulged in three splendid hot meals (plenty of meat) every day in the year, few windows in the plastered house, the water brought from the spring house under the side of the hill, no fear of microbes, no necessity of taking a course in Delsarte. What interested one neighbor was interest to all. I was 18 years old when my parents emigrated from Kentucky to Texas. My father's parents were still living in the old home where they had reared their 12 children. These good old people lived to be 20 and 85. I never knew either of them to be sick; even a headache was a stranger to them.

Wouldn't it be a good idea to return to more primitive habits, that this "white pleague" may be checked? It is a nervous disease, it seems, beyond the reach of well developed medical science. We live artificially; windows and doors must be opened, though we are shivering with cold; died, destitute of nourishment, underfeeding, we heed too many calls that tax our strength, our anxiety to excel our neighbors. Children grow up without a childhood, and many parents, different from Abraham, do not "command their household after them."

I would like to see the man who can write the equal to the book we Americans are compiling day by day.

MRS. T. A. PANKEY.

Of Interest to Women

BY RUTH TAYLOR.

"Time will fade and gray the hair,
Nothing dims a mother's love,
It's always there."

Today is Mothers' Day; as though all the days of our lives were not mothers' days. From the very time of our entering this grand old world until the minute of our exodus, we will in some way or other still have days that are mothers'. Even though that fondest of parents has crossed over into the Beyond, we will continue to hold in our hearts some self-communing thoughts that center around the beloved name of mother.

The instituting of an especial day to honor one's mother is supposed to particularly appeal to the men of our country, not that men venerate their mother any less than do women, but because, in the busy world of affairs, there seems to be no appropriate place in which to set up an altar to motherhood. So there has in consequence arisen a day set apart in which our manhood may worship at the shrine of woman in her noblest calling.

Many have criticised such an act as setting aside any one particular day, and designating it "Mothers' Day," but how many countless thousands are there who have gone forth from the home heart hand have grown hardened by work, privation and suffering until even a tiny thought of home and mother never enters into their lives?

For such as these and the man more fortunate but neglectful ones, is Mothers' Day intended. When one takes up his mourning paper and reads the announcement that the second Sunday in May has been dedicated to mothers, one can but fail to fall into a retrospective mood.

The days of early childhood though they lie dimly in the past are awakened in an instant. We can behold ourselves a child again in the old home. Among all the familiar scenes our minds can picture there is ever one tender form that hovers around the home nest, always sympathetic and loving. Mother's was the heart and hand that kept the home circle complete. Her's were the words that bade us know that home staying hearts were happiest and when the days came all too soon, when her sons must bid her adieu to early ties and seek their places out in the busy thoroughfares, or her daughters, forsaking all others, clung unto a new life and love, then was her heart bravest and her words of trust and hope dearest. There is no tenderness like a mother's and no heart can break so soon as hers at the forgetfulness of the son or daughter who has forgotten the dear mother's love that has hallowed their days since the golden days of babyhood.

Were Mothers' Day of use only as a reminder of our selfish or thoughtless hours, it would be unsurpassed in its benefits to manhood and womanhood. Many of us have mothers in distant states, or even across the ocean's blue, who have been pushed aside, as it were, in the struggle for position and power. There have been weeks, probably months, since those dear old eyes have brightened and that fond kind heart quickened at a message from her loved one. She has wondered and hoped and waited. Her's was not the heart to censure, but to pardon and forgive.

For the sake of that dim, distant childhood, for the sake of the dear one who guided our early footsteps and for the love we once bore her let us celebrate the dearest epoch of our lives—the veneration of motherhood.

NEVADA DISTRICT WAS APTLY NAMED

As the result of a geologic field examination made in 1910 by F. C. Schrader, in Elko county, Nev., the United States geological survey has just published a report on the Jarbidge, Contact and Elk mountain mining districts. The area comprising these districts is about 35 miles long and 26 miles wide, and covers about 1,400 square miles. It lies in the northeastern part of the region known as the Nevada Plateau, at a general elevation of about 6,000 feet, and contains part of two grand features of this western country—the Great Basin on the south and the Snake River valley on the north—and the intervening divide crosses its southern corners.

The rugged character of the Jarbidge district is indicated by its name which Mr. Schader tells us, is derived from the Indian name "Ja-ho-bich," meaning the devil. "Traditionally," he says, "it is applied to this district from Indian association of diabolical power with the tacaclysmis volcanism suggested by the rugged mountains, high peaks, deep canyons, and hot springs of the region, and probably also from local eruptions of lavas which the Indians may have witnessed in the adjoining Snake river valley within the last century, the eruptions being regarded as manifestations of the evil spirit and the lavas perhaps being correlated in origin with similar ones exposed in the Jarbidge mountains."

The first gold ore discovered in the Jarbidge district is reported to have been found in 1904 by a sheep herder but the discovery that led to the founding of the present camp and district was made in 1909, and almost weekly up to the present time the discoveries have continued. The developments are daly proving more encouraging and substantial, and the district as a whole is more than fulfilling the promise of its surface showings. Analyses of the ores are given in detail, and it is of particular interest at the present time that in some of these analyses large percentages of potash have been determined.

The ores of the Contact district are almost wholly copper ores, but they contain also small amounts of silver and gold, and in some portions of the district lead, manganese, and zinc ores are found. The early prospectors searched for gold, but Mr. Schrader describes a number of copper properties that have been opened since 1887, many of them having been operated on a rather large scale. With good railroad facilities, which are promised in the near future, a new impetus will be given to getting out the ore.

The report describes in detail the geology, mineralogy and mining operations of the region and is accompanied by photographic illustrations showing the topographic features and rock formations, by vein and claim maps indicating the general distribution of the deposits, and by geologic and topographic maps of the areas described.

INDIAN FAIR WILL BE HELD AT WATONGA

Cheyennes and Arapahoes Going in for Fine Stock Raising and Will Show Good Colts.

Special to The Morning News.

Guthrie, May 11.—The presence Short Nose, also known as Wrinkle Face, a prominent Cheyenne Indian, helped the citizens of Watonga materially during the last week in landing the 1912 Indian agricultural fair for Watonga. The other main applicant for the fair was Weatherford, but the Indians voted for Watonga, where they held a successful fair last September. Each town placed a bid before the fair association of $500. Wrinkle Face is a member of the Cheyenne colony at Canton ment, in Blaine county, of which Watonga is the county seat, and he accompanied the Watonga delegation to Weatherford to make a fight for the location.

The Cheyennes and Arapahoes had but few horses, mules and cattle on show last fall, but already they are preparing to take their animals to Watonga for the 1912 fair to prove that they can raise just as good stock as the white man. These Indians as a rule have the best of horses, and they expect to make a specialty of colts at the fair.

Greater Variety of Products.

The agricultiral exhibit this year will show a greater variety of products than last season, as this spring the Indians are not confining themselves to growing corn alone, but are trying various crops. The weather thus far this year has been the very best for crops and this fact also has encouraged the Indians. The crops undoubtedly will be far better this year than last.

Attending the Indian fair last fall were many visitors from over the United States, some of them coming even from New York for the event. This year the fair will be of far greater attraction. The fame won in 1911 will help to bring visitors this fall. The pictures taken of the Indian parades and various other features last fall at Watonga have been shown all over the United States and were extensively used by the newspapers.

The crops and stock raising, as followed by the Indians, are under the supervision of the federal agricultural agents who have been selected for this work by the United States department of agriculture. They have ineterested in the Indians in holding the annual fair and the results have been more beneficial than ever anticipated.

THOUGHT HE FOUND BOMB IN T. R.'S HEADQUARTERS

Package Addressed to the Colonel Contained Only Medicine For Fever.

By The Associated Press.

Washington, May 11.—Friends of Colonel Roosevelt have just learned of a near-tragedy that nearly occurred in their New York headquarters several days ago.

A box addressed to the colonel arrived there and was delivered to George Henry Payne. Mr. Payne was about to open it when his practiced ear caught a faint ticking within. With the promptness and decision which always characterized him Mr. Payne separated himself from the box by the largest amount of space the office was able to give and called up the bureau of combustibles.

An inspector was promptly on the spot. He immersed the box and its fiendish contents in water until the thing got discouraged and stopped ticking. Then he took the roof off of he box and discovered a small clock, two bottles cotaining some kind of liquid and a very damp letter. The letter being opened was found to contain an affectionate adjuration to the colonel to partake of the contents of the bottles, as they would do him a lot of good.

On examination th bottles were found to contain samples of a patent medicine, the aim, intent and purpose of which is to reduce fever. The inspector offered to return them to Mr. Payne if he wanted to forward them to Colonel Roosevelt, but Mr. Payne became petulant and the inspector withdrew. Up to date the colonel's friends are informed the news of his escape has been withheld from him.

YOUNG COCKLEBURS DEADLY.

By The Associated Press.

Guthrie, Okla., May 11.—The annual spring reports of numerous hogs and other livestock being killed by eating young cocklebura are now being received from all sections of the state.

During the past week Leonard Richardson, who lives near Renfrow, lost his herd of young hogs in this manner.

D. L. Jamison & Co., 125 South 3rd street, would like to meet you and serve you with the best to be had in a meat market.
